MACON, DUBLIN AND SAVANNAH BOUGHT BY SEABOARD AIR LINE

Deal Consummated Thursday Gives Seaboard Direct Line to Macon.

PRESIDENT WALTER MADE HEAD OF ACQUIRED LINE

Nothing Given Out as to Plans of New Owners—Speculation Rife as to Extension of Road From Macon to Atlanta.

Macon, Ga., January 4.—(By Associated Press.)—At the meeting of directors and stockholders of the Macon, Dublin and Savannah railway yesterday morning, the Seaboard Air Line acquired the former road. Negotiations had been pending for several weeks and were consummated yesterday. The Seaboard was represented in the meeting by President Alfred Walter, Vice President Garrett and General Counsel Watts. There were present also President and General Manager T. K. Scott, of the Georgia railroad and the Macon, Dublin and Savannah. This will give a line from Macon to the sea at Savannah. The Macon, Dublin and Savannah connects at Vidalia with the Seaboard Air Line.

The Seaboard already has a line into Atlanta, and there are surveyors between Macon and Atlanta today lining out a new road just between the tracks of the Southern and the Central of Georgia.

It is rumored that there is also a trackage combination between the Seaboard, the Atlantic Coast Line and the Georgia railroad.

The Seaboard Air Line acquired the Macon, Dublin and Savannah by actual purchase. The price of the road and conditions of the sale were not made public.

New Directors Elected.

Macon, Ga., January 4.—(Special.)—The sale of the Macon, Dublin and Savannah railway to the Seaboard Air Line was consummated yesterday when a meeting of the stockholders and directors was called for the purpose of securing consent for the issue of a mortgage for $1,840,000 on all the property of the company.

The price paid was not made public here.

The new board of directors chosen was as follows: Alfred Walter and W. A. Garrett, of Norfolk, Va.; E. T. Brown, Atlanta; R. J. Taylor, A. C. Felton and J. T. Wright, Macon.

J. T. Wright was chosen vice president and general manager. He held this place prior to the transfer. Messrs. Hardeman and Jones are the retiring directors who leave the road with former President Scott.

From the Illinois and Georgia Improvement Company the Atlantic Coast Line purchased this property in the fall of 1904 for $1,000,000. The fact that a mortgage for nearly double this amount has been secured upon the property reveals that a much more handsome valuation has been placed on it.

There has been no indication as to whether the general offices will be removed from Macon. The general impression among the officials is that they will remain here.

Nothing definite regarding the construction of the new line to Atlanta could be ascertained but it is known that the officials of this line are busy with surveys between Macon and Atlanta.

Brown Confirms Purchase.

Edward T. Brown, of Brown & Randolph, local legal representatives of the Seaboard, who was elected a director of the Macon, Dublin and Savannah railroad at Thursday's meeting, confirms the purchase of the line by the Seaboard, but declines to give out anything as to the plans of the Seaboard concerning either the construction of a line from Macon to Atlanta, or the possibility of a trackage arrangement by which both the Seaboard and the Coast Line-Louisville and Nashville interests would get a through line from Atlanta to Savannah.

SEABOARD GETS SHORT LINE FROM MACON TO SAVANNAH

Purchase of Macon, Dublin and Savannah Gives a Direct Route Via. Vidalia, Nineteen Miles Shorter Than Central.

BY the purchase of the Macon, Dublin Savannah the Seaboard Air lin and Savannah the Seaboard Air con to Savannah, nineteen miles shorter than the route of the Central of Georgia between the Central City and the sea.

The Seaboard's line from Savannah to Montgomery is tapped by the Macon, Dublin and Savannah by the Coast Line prior to the purchase of the Macon, Dublin and Savannah by the Coast Line through service between Macon and Savannah was operated which proved very popular with travelers.

From Macon to Vidalia on the Macon, Dublin and Savannah is 92 miles and from Vidalia to Savannah on the Seaboard the distance is 80 miles, making a total of 172 miles via the Seaboard route, as against 191 over the Central.

If the Seaboard builds into Atlanta it will very probably be able to get a line which will greatly shorten the distance between Atlanta and Savannah. From Atlanta to Macon over the Central is 104 miles, making a total distance from Atlanta to Savannah of 295.

If the Seaboard gets a mileage from Atlanta to Macon as short as that of the Southern's line—88 miles—its total distance from Atlanta to Savannah will be 260 miles, beating the Central of Georgia by 30 miles.

PURCHASE MAKES ATLANTA CENTER OF BIG SYSTEM

THERE was no mistaking the fact that the purchase of the Macon, Dublin and Savannah by the Seaboard Air Line came as a great surprise to the members of the Atlanta railroad world when the Associated Press dispatch was made known. But as soon as they received the information, they were disposed to believe that it explaind many things.

They were also very ready to credit the new vice president and general manager of the Seaboard, Mr. Garrett, as being a great factor in the purchase. For the past week or two Mr. Garrett has spent very much of his time between Atlanta and Savannah and his mission has been a mystery to the local cinder colony and only to be accounted for by the fact that he was wanting to get acquainted with this territory. Now it is believed that he was here for the purpose of making a minute inspection of the Macon, Dublin and Savannah, and the conditions and promise of future conditions in this entire territory.

In this same connection, Atlanta railroad men, in discussing the matter, were quick to point out the fact that he had been so greatly impressed with Atlanta, its present and its future possibilities. He spoke again and again of its wonderful location both geographically and as a railroad center. It now seems that he did more than talk and was willing to prove the courage of his conviction in making Atlanta the center of the Seaboard system as it is the center of the Southern railway and other roads. It was pointed out that with this new purchase and the completion of the Seaboard line between Macon and Savannah, Atlanta would become the natural center of this big system with the probability of moving the headquarters from Portsmouth, Va., to this city. This was spoken of last night by officials as a probability more than a prediction, for it has long been admitted that the having of headquarters at the eastern terminus of the system has worked many disadvantages and cost much extra expense.

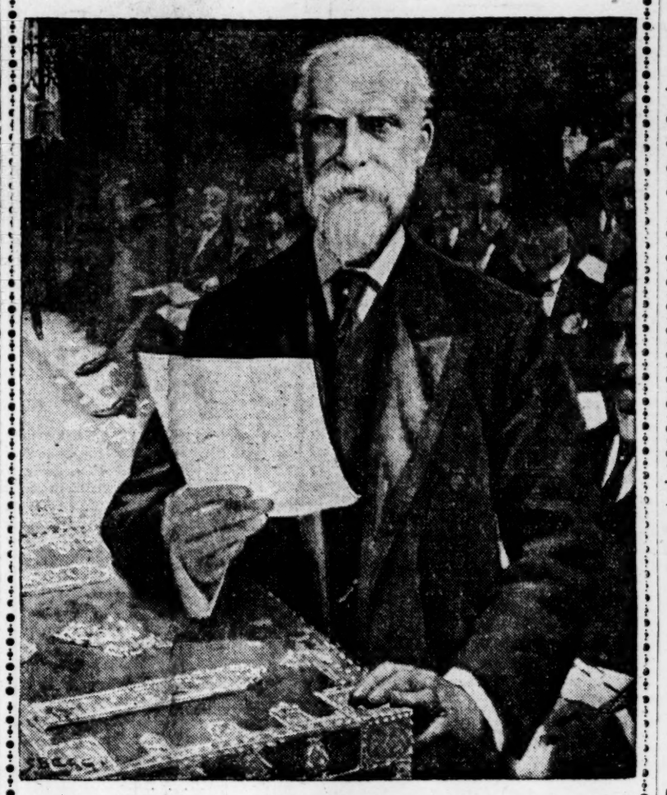
It was also agreed to by those in a position to know of such matters, that the coming of Mr. Garrett to the Seaboard marked a new era. He has the reputation of being one of the best and the most practical railroad men in the country, with the confidence of every director, and millions of dollars behind him.

Many are the advantages to Atlanta that this new purchase means. It will not only greatly enlarge the usefulness of the Seaboard Air Line, but with the building of the road from Macon to Atlanta it means a new connection between this city and the sea. And if this new Seaboard survey for this road is the same mileage between the Central and the Gate City, this means that the Seaboard will have a line just 32 miles shorter to Savannah than the Central of Georgia. As to the building of this line all were agreed that there would be little doubt but that this would be done at once, and that it would be the last link needed in the making of the Seaboard the shortest chain between Atlanta and the tidewater at Savannah.

It will also make Atlanta more than ever the great railroad center of the south. With the present Atlanta-Birmingham extension of the Seaboard, and by the completion of the Macon line and the new purchase, much traffic would be diverted through Atlanta that now goes south.

Railroad men also agreed that it proved that Atlanta was the acknowledged objective point in every big railroad move. Several Atlanta officials of the Seaboard were seen last night, but stated that they knew nothing of the deal, although they were more than pleased, and together with the reported arrangements with the Georgia railroad and the Atlantic Coast Line would add tremendously to the Seaboard as a factor, both in Atlanta and throughout the southeast.

With the new Louisville and Nashville road into Atlanta opening up its through passenger traffic Monday, the completion of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic from this city to the sea at Brunswick, and to Birmingham this coming summer, and this new development of the Seaboard, the Greater Atlanta of the immediate future is one that is certain to astonish even the most optimistic.



HON. JAMES BRYCE, NEW BRITISH AMBASSADOR TO THE UNITED STATES.

Mr. Bryce, the distinguished author, has the best claim to be appointed British ambassador at Washington. He understands the United States as few Britons do, and his book, "The American Commonwealth," is a classic. He is a Scotchman, and has sat since 1885 as member for the southern division of the city of Aberdeen. He is of Glasgow University and Trinity College, Oxford, D. C. L., and former professor of civil law of Oxford, a fellow of the Royal Society and of learned bodies in numerable at home and abroad.

NEGRO KILLED BY TRAIN IS EATEN BY THE HOGS

JESUP, GA., January 4.—(Special.)—A nude negro, presumably about 60 or 70 years old, with both legs and one arm severed close to the trunk, is what a secion hand discovered this morning lying on the crossties a mile from the depot. The peculiar thing was that no trace of the garments or missing limbs could be found. There was no wounds of a single description on the body to warrant the assumption of foul play. The grewsome theory that the members were destroyed by hogs seems the only plausible solution. The negro was evidently knocked from the track by the southbound passenger No. 33, that was several hours late, passing here about 9:45 o'clock. There was no means of identifying the body except a handkerchief lying near and tied in one of its corners was a punched conductor's slip and a postal receipt bearing a Florida postmark. The man had only one eye.

FERRYBOAT TO THE RESCUE OF DITCHED 'FRISCO TRAIN

CAPE GIRARDEAU, MO., January 4.—On the St. Louis-Cape Girardeau division of the Frisco road a section of track that had been weakened by heavy rains 20 miles north of here suddenly sagged under a passenger train last night and the smoking car overturned.

Seven passengers are reported injured. About two hundred passengers were aboard the train, and owing to the condition of the tracks it has not been able to reach them. The injured are also aboard the train, and it is impossible to learn how seriously they are hurt.

Frisco officials here have secured a ferryboat to go to the scene of the trouble, which is near the river.

SHIP CITY OF PANAMA REPORTED TO BE LOST

SAN FRANCISCO, January 4.—(Special.)—A dispatch from Pescadero, near San Francisco, says that the Pacific mail steamer City of Panama, which left here on December 31 for South and Central America, was wrecked near Wardell beach.

The Panama had a passenger list of seventy and a crew of thirty or more. Life rafts, fully provisioned, and much wreckage marked "City of Panama," are coming ashore, but no sign of a survivor.

A storm has prevailed along the coast for the last twenty-four hours.

BLOCK SYSTEM TO BE PROBED

Accidents on Southern and B. & O. Cause of the Inquiry.

Washington, January 4.—An inquiry into the operation of the block signal systems of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and of the Southern railway was instituted today by the interstate commerce commission. In making the inquiry, the commission is acting under authority of a resolution of congress adopted at the last session, calling for a report on the working of the railroad block system generally, specific instances of which appear to be a failure of the block signal device, or, as one of the commissioners expressed it, the failure of the human end of the device, to prevent accidents involving loss of not only property but life, were afforded by the recent distastrous accidents on the Southern railway at Lawyers, Va., and on the B. & O. railroad at Terra Cotta, D. C.

Officials of both the Southern and the B. & O. were subpenaed before the commission to give it such information as they might possess. If, after the officers of these lines have been examined, it be deemed desirable to do so the commission may call officials of other lines on which wrecks recently have occurred, on account of the apparent disregard of the block signals or the failure of the system to accomplish its purpose.

The following witnesses have been summoned and were present:

Charles Selden, superintendent of telegraph; John G. Wilson, assistant general attorney; C. S. Potter, third vice president; U. E. Dent, train dispatcher; J. W. Kelly, Jr., trainmaster; H. S. Padcord, trainman; F. P. Patenall, signal engineer, and Thomas Fitzgerald, general manager, all of the B. & O.; J. S. Hitchcock, a locomotive engineer of this city, and Eli C. Forrester, of Denver.

THEY MAY ASK FOR WARSHIP

Emery Company Fears It Will Not Get Fair Treatment.

New Orleans, January 4.—It was reported tonight, on good authority, that the George D. Emery Company, of Boston, is about to ask the United States government to send a warship to Bluefields, Nicaraugua, to protect American interests in that country in case of trouble approaching arbitration of a dispute between the Nicarauguan government and the company over the Emery concessions.

It is reported that three weeks ago the Nicarauguan government seized the Emery concession, claiming that the American company had violated its contract by selling provisions and supplies to others than their employees. Through the efforts of American Minister Merry it was decided to submit this dispute to arbitration. Now it is asserted that the Americans fear they may not receive fair treatment in the arbitration.

FATHER CUTS SON'S THROAT

They Had Friendly Wrestle Out on the Verandah.

New Orleans, La., January 4.—Thomas O'Conner, Jr., was killed tonight, having his throat cut with a knife while scuffling with his father. The elder Thomas O'Conner has been arrested and charged with the murder of his son.

Members of the family told the police that while the family was gathered on the veranda tonight father and son discussed whether the strongest always wins in a wrestling bout. The father claimed that the strongest did not always win, and offered to wrestle his son.

The family said that the father was laughing when he arose from the floor, after apparently getting the best of the boy, and that immediately afterward a deep cut was discovered in the young man's throat.

The police claim that the father is dazed, as if suffering either from a drug or drink, and that they have been able to learn nothing from him. The son was 20 years old.

FLOWER NABBED BY DETECTIVES

Swindler Arrested After Four Years of Pursuit by Officers.

Philadelphia, January 4.—R. C. Flower, alias C. G. Dalney, who has been a fugitive from New York since 1903, where he is wanted to answer charges of grand larceny and swindling credulous investors out of about $1,000,000 on alleged bogus mining operations, was arrested in this city today.

Flower, who the detectives say is the most colossal mine swindler of the age, was captured in a room in one of the big office buildings, in the center of the city, where, it develops, he has been located for some time. Under the name of Professor Oxford, the detectives say, he was seeking to secure money from investors by representing that he had a wonderful chemical process whereby he could make diamonds and other precious stones and a patent brick.

French to Publish Documents.

Rome, January 4.—The Osservatore Romano today published the following communication from the vatican: "It is stated that the French government intends to publish the text of some of the documents which were seized at the papal nunciature in Paris December 11. The holy see declares that it declines any responsibility for the publication, leaving it to the persons who may think themselves injured by the publication of the documents to use the means which they judge best to protect their rights. It must be borne in mind, however, that no inventory was made at the time of the seizure of the documents by the French government."

ASSASSIN NOT IDENTIFIED.

Many Arrests Made, but Nothing Definite Discovered.

St. Petersburg, January 4.—A general search of the lodgings of persons under police observation was made here during the night in the hope of discovering the accomplices of the assassin of Prefect of Police Von Der Launitz. Many arrests were made, but so far as known no important terrorists were captured.

FRENCH OFFICERS HAVE DUEL.

Combat Was of Real Order With Guns at Close Range.

Paris, January 4.—News of a duel between two French officers, one of whom was seriously wounded, is being circulated here. The principals were Lieutenants Spitzer and Andreal, at one time close friends, and the scene of the affray was near Versailles.

Regulation army revolvers were used, and the agreement permitted each of the combatants to fire as many of the twenty-five cartridges with which each was provided as he could. The principals went to the scene of the duel in automobiles and the preliminaries were quickly arranged. The men were placed about thirty meters apart and fired at the word.

After six shots had been exchanged, Lieutenant Spitzer dropped his revolver and fell into the arms of his seconds. When the injured man was taken to a near-by habitation, it was found that he had been seriously wounded in the abdomen. Lieutenant Spitzer, who is now said to be in a private hospital in Paris, is the son of a St. Petersburg banker.

He left home about 11 o'clock Wednesday morning, the day of the duel, making no sign that he contemplated engaging in a serious affray. The cause of the duel has not transpired.

SHIPPERS HAVE MEETING.

Railroads to Be Charged Demurrage When Cars Are Delayed.

Chicago, January 4.—Two hundred delegates, representing boards of trade and commercial organizations in all parts of the country, met here today for the purpose of forming the national reciprocal demurrage association and to take steps to force the railroads of the country to furnish sufficient cars for the adequate movement of freight. S. P. Andrew, of Memphis, was made temporary chairman and J. E. Defebaugh, of Chicago, temporary secretary. The objects of the meeting were announced as follows:

To make the railroads equal sufferers when cars are delayed; increasing the demurrage from the $1 contemplated in the Madden bill soon to come before congress to $5 when more than a reasonable time has been taken by the common carrier; the establishment of association that millions of dollars in demurrage charges are not collected from favored shippers; raising the obligatory 50 miles per day to 75, not permitting wrecks to operate as excuses for delay on the part of the railroads to deliver shipments promptly; dating bills of lading on such a way that demurrage deducted from the charge when the freight bill is paid.

The meeting will last for two days.

Riots in Spain.

Madrid, January 4.—Serious Octroi riots have occurred at Alcante, province of Valencia. Crowds surrounded the shops, stoned those owners who refused to close, and in some cases even attempted arson. The civil guard tried to disperse the rioters without using violence, but failing, were compelled to charge. Shots were fired, as a result of which two persons were killed and a number wounded. Similar scenes were enacted at Saguanto, where two persons also met death at the hands of the guards.

Conference for Thaws.

New York, January 4.—A conference of the members of the Thaw family is to be held within a few days to endeavor to induce Mrs. William Thaw to permit her son Harry to be examined by a lunacy commission according to a report circulated today. It is said that the members of the family, aside from Thaw and his mother, are convinced of the wisdom of the proposed step, but that Mrs. Thaw is firmly opposed to it.

Oldknow, Holland, Curtis and Chosewood Will Vote to Override Veto.

ONLY THREE COUNCILMEN IN DOUBTFUL COLUMN

Councilmen Ellis and Pattillo Are in Favor of Sustaining the Veto, and Councilman Taylor Has Not Announced His Position in the Matter.

"I have been talking the matter of high license over with the business men of the city," said Councilman Oldknow yesterday afternoon, "and I have decided that the people want it, and am prepared to vote for it.

"I have always been in favor of certain restrictions for the saloon trade of Atlanta. I was originally a $1,500 license man, and regarded the $2,000 as somewhat excessive, but now I am satisfied that the people want it, and that it will be for the best interests of the city.

"I made up my mind a day or so ago to vote to override the mayor's veto."

The developments of yesterday, when four members of council, heretofore undecided on the question of higher license, announced themselves ready to vote to override the veto of the mayor, seem to indicate that when the matter comes up for vote the city council will present an almost unanimous front in favor of a $2,000 saloon license and a $400 beer license.

That the veto of Mayor James G. Woodward will be overridden, and that with ease, is now assured.

From the men who were counted upon as certain supporters of the Woodward veto, one has yielded to the voice of the people he represents, and from the doubtful column all names have been taken into the anti-Woodward camp, save one.

In other words, there are today pledged to override the veto twenty votes, in favor of sustaining two, doubtful one.

Yesterday morning Sid Holland, of the third ward, announced that he had decided to leave the sustaining column, and vote to override, taking this action because of the desire of the citizens of the ward he represents.

Councilman Curtis, of the first ward, and Councilman Charles Chosewood, of the third, also decided to leave the column of the doubtful and become members of the overriders.

Last night Councilman Oldknow stated that he had also decided to vote as the business men of Atlanta desired, and override the veto of the mayor.

This leaves Councilman Ellis and Pattillo, opposed, and Councilman Taylor, doubtful.

Councilman Taylor is at present in Washington, and his position cannot be ascertained.

Alderman Holland, in talking of his change of opinion, said: "I had intended to vote to sustain the mayor, but I cannot conscientiously do so, when I find the people of my ward and of the entire city so intent upon having the retail saloon license raised to $2,000. I do not feel that I ought to stand in their way. On the contrary, I believe that a member of council should voice the wishes of his constituents, whenever he

THEY BOOMED ATLANTA FOR SUBTREASURY

THEY HAD LONG TALK WITH SECRETARY SHAW

Delegations From Other Cities Are on Hand, and the Question of Location Will Be Fought Out Before Ways and Means Committee.

By John Corrigan.

Washington, January 4.—(Special.)—The plans for a caucus on the subtreasury, to determine the precise point of its location in the southeast, has been abandoned and the states interested will fight out the matter before the ways and means committee of the house and the finance committee of the senate.

A delegation from Georgia is already here. Othens from Alabama and South Carolina will arrive tomorrow. In accordance with this change of program, the Georgia delegation will appear before the ways and means committee tomorrow at noon and will be given a hearing. They are loaded with maps and statistics, showing Atlanta's preeminent qualifications for the subtreasury, both from the standpoint of position and banking facilities. They will be able to present a strong argument, and the exhibit to be made before the committee has convinced many delegates from other states of the justice of Atlanta's claims.

Visitors Meet Congressmen.

Today, at noon, the Georgia visitors met a number of the Georgia delegation in congress in the rooms of the house appropriations committee. There were present Senators Bacon and Clay and Representatives Livingston, Adamson, Bartlett, Hardwick, Bell and Lee. They discussed the matter at length and adjourned in order to call on Secretary Shaw. The visitors were accompanied to the treasury department by Bacon, Clay and Livingston, and every effort was made to have the secretary settle the matter finally.

It was shown that two efforts had been made to hold a caucus, in accordance with the secretary's suggestions, and both attempts had proven futile. It was, therefore, urged that he should officially end the matter. The secretary demurred, declaring that he had no authority to dictate to congress what it should do. Much speculation is being indulged in tonight as to the attitude of the ways and means committee.

Senator Payne, chairman, is supposed to be friendly to Atlanta, as are Champ Clark, Samuel M. Robertson, Bourke Cockran and Daniel Granger. Cockran, however, is not now in Washington. Underwood of Alabama, a member of the committee, is fighting for Alabama. The other members of the committee are Dalzell of Pennsylvania, Grosvenor of Ohio, McCleary of Minnesota, McCall of Massachusetts, Babcock of Wisconsin, Hill of Connecticut, Boutell of Illinois, Watson of Indiana, Curtis of Kansas, Needham of California, William Alden Smith of Michigan, and John Sharp Williams of Mississippi.

The Atlanta delegation, which came to Washington for the purpose of securing the location of the subtreasury in Atlanta, arrived this morning at 2:30 o'clock and are registered at the New Willard. The party included Colonel R. J. Lowry, Robert F. Maddox, John Temple Graves, Joseph Hirsch, Walter G. Cooper, Dr. W. A. Taylor, E. E. Pomeroy, J. Willie Pope and Joseph A. McCord.

Among the other Georgians here are Sam B. Brown of Albany, and his wife, and John J. Wilkins, of Athens, who are registered at the Raleigh. Many other Georgians from Atlanta, and several from other sections representing the Georgia Bankers' Association, were expected, but were prevented from making the trip.

Bacon Talks With Shaw.

Senator Bacon made a strong argument before Secretary Shaw this afternoon, urging the secretary to admit that the consistently can, and I intend to do it by voting to override the veto."

Councilman Curtis prepared the following statement:

"I shall vote on next Monday to override the veto of Mayor Woodward. I had been inclined to sustain him, for the reason that one or two of the features of the ordinance do not meet my approval, but the new council can, if it desires, make the changes I contemplate.

"My determination to vote in this way, is due to the positive belief that a large majority of the best citizens of my ward and of the entire city want the retail saloon license fixed at $2,000, and I believe that a representative should, as far as possible, without conflicting with his conscience, be bound by, and seek to follow, the wishes of his constituents. This is especially true of questions of a moral nature, and that there is a moral side to the whisky question no one can doubt. My decision has been influenced in no small degree by a number of personal visits I have received, and many letters from prominent citizens, such as Hon. Sam D. Jones, president of the chamber of commerce; Henry Y. McCord, R. B. Toy and others, all begging that I give my support to the $2,000 license.

"One feature of the law which I do not like, is the limitation of the number of saloons by population. This section tends to foster a monopoly, and to keep practically all new-comers out. I think that as long as Atlanta has saloons, if a man should come to the city, wishing to invest $15,000 or $20,000 in a saloon, under our laws, as to location, character of applicant, etc., he should be allowed to do so."

Chosewood "Teetotally" Opposed.

Councilman Charles L. Chosewood gave out the following statement:

"After very careful consideration, I have decided that the best interests of the city, as a whole, will be served by overriding the mayor's veto, and the fixing of the liquor license at $2,000.

"When the matter came up for a vote, recently, I voted against the two thousand dollar license ordinance. I then believed that inasmuch as I and other members of the general council had been virtually elected upon the understanding that the thousand dollar license and present liquor regulations, which had been in force for nearly twenty years, would not be disturbed, one way or the other, and I felt then that my duty to my constituents required me to vote as above stated.

"Further reflection has convinced me, however, that owing to the changed conditions of things that the people of Atlanta really desire the passage of the $2,000 ordinance, and it is my bound duty as their representative, to vote as they wish.

"I am teetotally opposed to the ruinous agitation and harm that will result to Atlanta from a prohibition election, and placing faith and confidence in the published statements of leading prohibitionists that there shall be no prohibition election if the mayor's veto shall be voted down, I shall vote to override such veto.

"While I do not believe in imposing unjust burdens upon the liquor interests, as long as they are allowed to do business at all, yet I do believe in the strict regulations of the liquor traffic."

Dr. E. M. Hathaway, M.D.

I wish I could impress upon the reader the danger in delaying consultation and treatment in chronic illness.

There is a disposition to carelessness on the part of sufferers from a long-standing trouble.

They reason, "Oh, well; I've stood it so long, guess I can stand it a while longer. Some time I'll see if something cannot be done, but I'm not ready just yet."

Every day makes the trouble harder to overcome, no matter what it is.

Like an unguided locomotive on a down grade, disease gains momentum every moment, and if unchecked is just as certain to result disastrously.

But most important is the fact that while today only one organ of the body may be affected, tomorrow the disablement of another may begin.

The human body is so constructed that its many parts depend more or less one upon the other for strength and sustenance.

One part cannot long be in need of assistance without making its trouble felt in the imperfect working of other parts.

There is no need of delay. If any reader if this is in need of competent medical advice or treatment, I invite you to call upon us for consistently can, and I intend to do it by voting to override the veto."

Councilman Curtis prepared the following statement:

"I shall vote on next Monday to override the veto of Mayor Woodward. I had been inclined to sustain him, for the reason that one or two of the features of the ordinance do not meet my approval, but the new council can, if it desires, make the changes I contemplate.

"My determination to vote in this way, is due to the positive belief that a large majority of the best citizens of my ward and of the entire city want the retail saloon license fixed at $2,000, and I believe that a representative should, as far as possible, without conflicting with his conscience, be bound by, and seek to follow, the wishes of his constituents. This is especially true of questions of a moral nature, and that there is a moral side to the whisky question no one can doubt. My decision has been influenced in no small degree by a number of personal visits I have received, and many letters from prominent citizens, such as Hon. Sam D. Jones, president of the chamber of commerce; Henry Y. McCord, R. B. Toy and others, all begging that I give my support to the $2,000 license.

"One feature of the law which I do not like, is the limitation of the number of saloons by population. This section tends to foster a monopoly, and to keep practically all new-comers out. I think that as long as Atlanta has saloons, if a man should come to the city, wishing to invest $15,000 or $20,000 in a saloon, under our laws, as to location, character of applicant, etc., he should be allowed to do so."

Chosewood "Teetotally" Opposed.

Councilman Charles L. Chosewood gave out the following statement:

"After very careful consideration, I have decided that the best interests of the city, as a whole, will be served by overriding the mayor's veto, and the fixing of the liquor license at $2,000.

"When the matter came up for a vote, recently, I voted against the two thousand dollar license ordinance. I then believed that inasmuch as I and other members of the general council had been virtually elected upon the understanding that the thousand dollar license and present liquor regulations, which had been in force for nearly twenty years, would not be disturbed, one way or the other, and I felt then that my duty to my constituents required me to vote as above stated.

"Further reflection has convinced me, however, that owing to the changed conditions of things that the people of Atlanta really desire the passage of the $2,000 ordinance, and it is my bound duty as their representative, to vote as they wish.

"I am teetotally opposed to the ruinous agitation and harm that will result to Atlanta from a prohibition election, and placing faith and confidence in the published statements of leading prohibitionists that there shall be no prohibition election if the mayor's veto shall be voted down, I shall vote to override such veto.

"While I do not believe in imposing unjust burdens upon the liquor interests, as long as they are allowed to do business at all, yet I do believe in the strict regulations of the liquor traffic."

Consult Us today about your ailment

BY

E. M. Hathaway, M.D.

I wish I could impress upon the reader the danger in delaying consultation and treatment in chronic illness.

There is a disposition to carelessness on the part of sufferers from a long-standing trouble.

They reason, "Oh, well; I've stood it so long, guess I can stand it a while longer. Some time I'll see if something cannot be done, but I'm not ready just yet."

Every day makes the trouble harder to overcome, no matter what it is.

Like an unguided locomotive on a down grade, disease gains momentum every moment, and if unchecked is just as certain to result disastrously.

But most important is the fact that while today only one organ of the body may be affected, tomorrow the disablement of another may begin.

The human body is so constructed that its many parts depend more or less one upon the other for strength and sustenance.

One part cannot long be in need of assistance without making its trouble felt in the imperfect working of other parts.

There is no need of delay. If any reader if this is in need of competent medical advice or treatment, I invite you to call upon us for location of a branch of the subtreasury at Atlanta would best meet the demands of the territory in the southeast, which it is proposed to serve. The secretary would not be cornered, however, and declared that Charleston, Columbia, Savannah, Atlanta, Birmingham or Montgomery would meet the needs of the situation.

BOOMED ATLANTA FOR SUBTREASURY

Senator Bacon commented upon the fact that a South Carolina point would be too far removed from Alabama, and an Alabama city too far remote from South Carolina to be of the highest effect, whereas Georgia's geographical position made her the logical and ideal place for it.

The secretary evidently saw the point, but insisted upon evading the question as to which city would be the most completely available of the towns named by him.

He said it was not his place to designate a location, but simply to indicate a need for a subtreasury which he had done.

Tonight, at the New Willard, the Georgia visitors entertained the Georgia congressional delegation and a small number of invited guests at a delightful dinner. Short talks were made by several members present.

Confident hopes were expressed that good work would be done tomorrow.

Champ Clark, of Missouri, was the only guest other than Georgians present at the dinner given tonight by the Georgia visitors to the Georgia delegation in congress at the New Willard. Covers were laid for twenty and the menu was delightful. No speeches were made, but brief felicitations were extended by R. F. Maddox, John Temple Graves and Champ Clark.

OMNIBUS BILL BEFORE HOUSE.

Bill Barely Beyond Starting Post When House Adjourned.

Washington, January 4.—The omnibus claims bill, so called, carrying appropriations for claims under the Bowman and Tucker acts and miscellaneous claims on which favorable reports have been made by the war claims committee, was before the house today, and for nearly five hours the merits of the measure were exploited. The bill, however, hardly got beyond starting post stage when the house adjourned.

After the approval of the Journal, Speaker Cannon announced the appointment of Representative Engelbright, of California, to a place on the committee of mines and mining, vice Mr. Williamson, of Oregon, removed.

The speaker based this action on the ground that Mr. Williamson had failed thus far to attend a single session of the fifty-ninth congress. He has been convicted of participation in the lands frauds of Oregon.

The house at 4:40 p. m. adjourned until Monday.

ANNUAL REPORT OF DETECTIVES

Recovered Stolen Goods to the Amount of $19,291.50.

Denies That There Is Any Intention in His Report to Criticize County Recorder Reached $13,242.50.

The annual report of the detective department of the Atlanta police department clearly shows a vast amount of work, and such a great work has never been done during the history of the detective force. During the year 1906 Sergeant Newport A. Lanford, with only eight men, recovered stolen goods to the amount of $19,291.50, and the amount of fines imposed by the recorder in cases brought before the police court was $13,242.50. The value of convicts who were either sentenced or paid fines in higher courts amounted to $120,000. Taking the aggregate, the total is $152,834.04.

It would be almost needless to comment on the work of Sergeant Lanford. He has been very successful during the last year in making raids upon famous gambling dens. He has been successful in rounding up pickpockets, especially those who have caused the city so much trouble. The same comment can be made of the men under him.

Sergeant Lanford takes exception to the story in The Georgian headed "Detective Report Takes a Shot at County Officials."

"That article puts me in a very bad light. It tries to make the public think that I am trying to criticize the county officials. There is not a word of truth in it. The reporter never even asked me about the report. I certainly think no one in my department would say that the fines imposed in the higher courts were put into the pockets of the county officials. I make this statement to clearly show my position in the matter. Anyone whoreads my report can see that no statement is made in it in regard to conduct of the county officials. Nor do I even think of any such things that article states. All that we do is to collect evidence against prisoners. It is certainly none of our business what the county officials do with them. Such statements will reflect against the county officials, which is a grevious error, and I sincerely desire that it be corrected. I never have, nor ever will, have any such thought, nor is there any such thought in my report to indicate that I take a shot at the county officials."

Report of Department.

Below is an exact copy of the report which Sergeant Lanford gave to Chief Henry Jennings of the work done by the detective department during the year 1906:

"Captain Henry Jennings, Chief of Police—Dear Sir: I respectfully submit herewith report of work done by the detective department for the calendar year 1906.

"Number of cases made for violation of state laws, 499.

"Length of sentences imposed by state courts, 401 years, 3 months, and one for life.

"Number of cases made before the recorder, 905.

"Amount of fines imposed by the recorder, $3,242.50.

"Number of receipts for lost and stolen goods recovered, 630.

"Aggregate value of lost and stolen goods recovered, receipted for and turned over to proper owners, $19,291.54.

"Number of calls reported of burglaries, larcenies, lookouts and lost and stolen articles, 2,340.

"Number of calls answered, investigated and acted on, 3,549.

"This report, though short and concise, really represents, in condensed form, the hard labor of my men during the past year, a service which they have willingly and unhesitatingly contributed toward the accomplishments of the results stated. In additon to the above item of this report I would say that sixty-four white gamblers were apprehended and arrested by this department, bound over to the city court of Atlanta, prosecuted to conviction and the fines imposed presumably paid into the county treasurer. I would further add that we have apprehended and arrested eight (8) pickpockets who were plying their vocation here during the time of the president's visit to Atlanta, and I am informed that the appearance bonds of all save one were forfeited and collected, which amounts so paid, it is reasonable to suppose, have been similarly accounted for.

"It is with a considerable degree of pride that I take the liberty of saying that this department has, during the year, contributed in values and money to the treasuries of the state, county and city, and to the owners of lost and stolen articles the sum of $152,834.04. Estimating the value of convicts at $300 per head, each of the items are as follows:

Value of convicts..	$120,300.00
Recorder's fines....	13,242.50
Lost and stolen goods returned	19,291.54
Total..	$152,834.04

"This does not take into account the amounts collected from the gamblers, nor the amounts realized on the forfeited bonds of the pickpockets, as the amounts so collected are not of record in this office. Respectfully submitted,

"N. A. LANFORD,
"Sergeant of Detectives."

THEY PAY FOR OVERWEIGHTS

Is Charge of Lumber Men Against Railroads.

New Orleans, January 4.—Taking of testimony closed tonight in the hearing of southern lumbermen before the state railroad commission on the claim that $1,000,000 annually is lost to lumbermen through overweights charged by railroads on lumber shipments. Arguments will begin tomorrow.

F. O. Becker, superintendent of the western weighing and inspection bureau, of Chicago, principal witness for the railroads, denied that cars were heavy with dirt, and submitted figures to show that old cars, instead of being heavier, as the lumbermen claim, average 178 pounds lighter, which loss railroads bear.

Attorneys for the railroads sought to show that these overcharges occurred during the Southern Pacific clerks' strike, and that the railroads billed the cars at their marked capacity. They claimed also that their companies have ninety days in which to settle claims.

Robert Downman, another witness, who is interested in five mills, testified that the railways furnished cars which had been used to haul coal, and that weights were increased by coal dirt to the amount of 50 cents to $3.50 per car.

Washington, January 4.—The house today considered in committee of the whole the question relating to war and other claims. The first bill taken up was for the allowance of certain claims for stores and supplies reported by the court of claims under the provision of what is commonly known as the Bowman act and the French spoliation claims. Grain Men Meet in Memphis.

Memphis, Tenn., January 4.—Representative grain men from St. Louis, Nashville, Evansville, Cairo, Henderson and Memphis met here today with railroad officials in an effort to obtain a modification of grain rates that went into effect over the several lines on January 1. A decision in the matter will probably be given out in a few days.

NORTH ABINGTON, MASS.

MANY ODD NICK-NAMES FOR DIFFERENT FLOORS OF ATLANTA SKYSCRAPER

OWING to some facetious elevator men or elevator passengers of the Fourth National bank building, the stranger who comes within the city's gates is certain to be astonished on his maiden trip upward or downward. The reason for his astonishment and surprise is the nick-names which have been assigned to several of the floors.

Just how it all started no one seems to know. The starter stated that he thought it was all a part of the Christmas josh. But notwithstanding the mystery which surrounds the starting of the custom, the fact remains that the visitor to the Fourth National bank building upon the arrival of the elevator at the third floor is sure to hear, "Griffin!" shouted in a lusty, train-brakeman tone of voice.

The sixth floor is yclept—as Mr. Shakespeare would have said—"the underwear and embroidery department." The eighth floor again becomes geographical, and bears the swift and speedy cognomer of "Macon;" the ninth answers to the "hats, caps, fancy goods, children's clothing and rubber goods"—all this in the department store tone of voice. The eleventh floor apears to be the godson of Bobby Walthour, for Walthour is its name. The thirteenth, unlucky number to the superstititous, has no such suggestion. On the contrary, it is called "Luckie" street. Two floors above is "the hardware department."

What is sure to impress the visitor and stranger is the fact that there is no attempt at humor on the part of the elevator men in the calling out of these stops. Never a smile crosses their face, and the timid passenger who would like to ask an explanation is afraid to, for fear of being considered a "Reuben" and a "hayseed." But even those who are sufficiently courageous to ask questions can secure but little information for the practice, and its beginning seems to be wrapped in mystery, for only the silence of the elevator men comes as answer to any leading question on the subject.

ERWIN PREPARING BRIEF IN THE CASE

To Be Used in the Appeal of Greene and Gaynor.

They Will Make Effort for a New Trial Before the Court of Appeals, and the District Attorney Will Be Ready.

Macon, Ga., January 4.—(Special.)—United States District Atorney Marion Erwin returned to Macon today after more than a month's absence in Chicago. He comes to Macon to prepare the brief which is to be used in the appeal case of Greene and Gaynor in the circuit court of appeals. This will require some time. The case was set for hearing on January 7, but in all probability it will be reassigned for a later time.

The preparation for the appeal has cost the two prisoners more than $7,000, and there are yet heavy expenses to be met. More than five thousand pages of type written matter is contained in the record for appeal. The records have been prepared in Savannah. District Attorney Erwin's brief is to be lengthy itself, and the fight over a new trial will be a long one. Preparations are being made on both sides for the contest, and great interest in the result is being taken.

EWING MAKES ANNUAL REPORT

City License Inspector Tells of the Work Done During Year.

City License Inspector Ewing has a very remarkable report to send in to the city council on the work done by his department for the year 1906. To express it in figures, he has collected through personal effort the sum of $7,920.10, which would not otherwise have been turned in on the tax books. In the report, Mr. Ewing mentions and recommends that the law which was repealed in regard to rectifiers of liquors be again made effective. In regard to the social clubs, he has had that placed in the hands of the tax committee. A vote of thanks is tendered to the city tax committee for their cooperation in the work.

City License Inspector Ewing, ever since his succession to the place which the late "Jumbo" Hunter so faithfully held for many years, has efficiently discharged his duty.

H. F. Hayes fills his place in an able manner.

Below is the report in full:

"To the Honorable Mayor and General Council of the City of Atlanta.—Gentlemen: We beg to submit our report as to operations of the license inspector's office for the year ending December 31, 1906.

"At the present date there are in force 5,500 general business licenses, exclusive of liquor, beer and peddlers' licenses. There are 464 drays and 124 hacks.

"As to the increase to the city from this department, the city clerk's report will evidence. The total has been somewhat reduced over previous years on account of the proration of certain classifications there heretofore have been required to pay for full year no difference as to when licenses were issued.

"And we recommend, in the interest of the public, that this proration of yearly licenses as per this year's tax books be continued.

"The law has been enforced as to collection of several classifications that have been heretofore overlooked, this has been done without working a hardship on any one.

"We have taken credit for the following amounts collected by this office, which the city would not have gotten except for our effort:

January	$ 928 75
February	687 00
March	459 00
April	513 00
May	787 60
June	631 00
July	495 00
August	505 75
September	312 90
October	1,387 50
November	675 25
December	536 20
Total	$7,920 10

"We recommend that the law heretofore in force as to rectifiers of liquors, which was repealed, to again be effective.

"The matter of social clubs is now in the hands of the tax committee.

"We desire to thank the entire tax committee for their cooperation and assistance given us in discharging our duties. There has never been nor can there ever be a more congenial, conscientious or a better set of business men than those who compose the tax committee, as follows: F. A. Quillian, chairman; J. H. Harwell, J. Sid Holland, W. A. Hancock and W. H. Patterson, each one of which has our most heartfelt thanks and best wishes. Respectfully submitted, R. A. EWING, "License Inspector.

"H. F. HAYES, "Assistant License Inspector."

SUIT AGAINST THE RAILROADS

To Have Certain Bonds Declared Invalid.

Jackson, Miss., January 4.—(Special.)—A very sensational petition was filed in the Hinds county chancery court today by B. B. Martin and W. B. Griffith, of Vicksburg, against the Yazoo City and Mississippi Railroad Company, the Illinois Central Railroad Company and the Metropolitan Trust Company of New York. The bill seeks to declare fraudulent all bonds issued by the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley railroad since 1884. The petition says the complainants are the holders of $47,500 in Yazoo and Mississippi Valley stock and $95,000 of the income bonds of the Louisville, New Orleans and Texas railroad, which was purchased in 1880 by the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley road. They set up that the earnings of the road have been wrongfully diverted and ask for a full accounting of all bonds issued and an injunction preventing the defendants disposing of the bonds.

Chicago, January 4.—Judge Dickinson, the chief counsel of the Illinois Central and Yazoo and Mississippi Valley railroads, left Chicago today for Washington. Other officials of the Illinois Central railroad declared that they had no knowledge of the suit filed in Hinds county, Mississippi, and could not imagine upon what it was based.

Mrs. Myers to Hang.

Kansas City, Mo., January 4.—Judge John Phillips, in the United States district court here today, denied the application of the attorneys for Mrs. Aggie Myers for a writ of habeas corpus. This means that Mrs. Myers, who is now in jail at Liberty under sentence of death for the murder of her husband, and Frank Bottman, in jail at Kansas City, for complicity in the crime, will be executed on JJanuary 10, unless Governor Folk interferes.

DROPPED DEAD IN HIS OFFICE

Captain Wm. Hansell Passed Away Yesterday Morning.

He Had Just Started to Dictate a Letter to His Stenographer When the End Came—The Funeral Arrangements Not Yet Made.

Just as he started to dictate a letter to his stenographer yesterday morning about 11 o'clock, Captain William Andrew Hansell, of 283 Washington street, fell dead in his private office at the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company, 112 West Alabama street.

CAPTAIN W. A. HANSELL.

Funeral arrangements will not be made until his children, who are absent from the city, can arrive.

On coming down to his office yesterday Captain Hansell stated to everyone whom he met that he was feeling better than ever before in his life. Colonel J. Rice Smith, manager of the sales department of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company, was in the city, and, having expected the visit, the captain took particular pains to get a box of cigars, which he passed around in his office. At 11 o'clock Dr. H. S. Hansell, of the United States army service, entered the room, in company with F. M. Whittle.

After talking a little while, Captain Hansell turned to his stenographer, Miss Mary Logan, of 35 West Peachtree street, to dictate a letter. Hardly had he made this move, before his head sank upon his chest, and he expired. Dr. Hansell, Mr. Whittle, and Miss Logan rushed to the prostrate form, and efforts were made to revive Captain Hansell. It was found, however, that he had a stroke of heart trouble, and died instantly.

Captain Hansell was born in Marietta, Ga., in 1842. He was the son of General Hansell. When the war broke out, he was attending the old Georgia Military Institute, at Marietta, and volunteered for service. He was adjutant in the Thirty-fifth Alabama regiment, and later entered the engineering corps, having assisted in the fortifying of Atlanta and Pensacola.

At the close of the civil war his family moved to northern Alabama, where he remained until 1879, moving to this city. He was in the fertilizer business for twenty-five years, having been connected with the George W. Scott Fertilizer Company. For the past five years he was the assistant manager of the local office of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company.

He leaves a wife, two sisters, Mrs. R. M. Clayton, of this city, and Mrs. J. H. Kather, of Washington, D. C., and the following children: Dr. H. S. Hansell, of the United States army service; W. A. Hansell, Jr., of this city; A. J. Hanseyy, of Cuthbert, Ga.; Mrs. Lewellyn Hillyer, of Macon, and Mrs. F. M. Whittle, of Savannah.

VISIT TO GREAT TIN MINE IN THE OLD NORTH STATE

The South Possesses The One Industry That Has No Competitor On This Continent.

LINCOLNTON, N. C., January 4.—Did you ever see a tin mine? Did you ever hear of a tin mine on this continent? I must confess I never had myself until the other day, being assigned to write a story about the Piedmont Tin Mine of North Carolina, I hied me to Lincolnton, the county seat of Lincoln county, and, after a pleasant half hour's drive due east of that town, I came upon the workings of the only mine in North America where tin is found.

In one sense, tin is one of the most precious metals that can be mined, and in another it is the commonest metal that we know of. You can buy a tin pail for 10c, and when you consider that tin is now bringing 43c per pound in the open market, it may occur to you for the first time in your life that the tin pail is really not pure tin. As a matter of fact, the ordinary cheap vessels we have been accustomed to call "tin" are really made of iron with the very thinnest coating of tin applied to the surface to keep away rust and corrosion. Copper vessels are the most expensive used in the household for ordinary purposes, and yet copper costs less than one-half as much as tin in the open market.

But to get back to the only tin mine in America. The sun was shining brightly as we drove through the fertile farm country east of Lincolnton, and it seemed a far cry to imagine rich bodies of any sort of ore as being the underlying strata of that beautiful land. My driver knew the way well, and I believe it took us less time, proportionately, to cover the two miles to the mine by buggy than it did to go from Atlanta to Lincolnton via the Southern railway. But here's hoping for better service. I was greeted hoping for better service.

Professor Furman, Veteran Miner.

I was greeted with a cheery "Good morning" as we drove up to the pumping station of the mine, and I introduced myself to the consulting engineer in charge of the work, Professor J. H. Furman, who proved a delightful host and a veritable encyclopedia of information on the subject of mining. He isn't very big, but he has the goods and knows his business. I had been advised in advance that Professor Furman was possibly the best expert on tin in the world, and for 20 years had made tin mining his specialty, having been actively engaged in Cornwall, England; Tasmania, Australia, and the Malay Peninsula, in addition to which he had had charge of gold and silver mining operations in Mexico, Africa and our own western states.

"How did you get down here in North Carolina, professor?" I began, after a few words explaining the occasion of my trip to the mine.

His answer proved the old adage about the prophet. "Why, I was born in North Georgia, within sight of the Ducktown Copper Mines, and it was like coming home after a voyage of many years in foreign lands to get back to Dixie to develop this property. Our family name is pretty well known in the south, I believe."

"What have you got here?" I next asked.

"Tin," he replied, "tin in paying quantities right under the surface; enough tin to keep your grandchildren mining it. Further than that, we are hardly interested at this day and time, but you know the tin mines of Cornwall have been worked continuously since before the Christian era and are still paying handsomely."

"How is it tin has never been mined before in this country?"

"I can answer that by the question, 'Why was silver never mined in the United States before 1860?' It seemed to be an understood fact that no silver would ever be found north of the Mexican line and no gold south of it. Professor Whitney gave this as his opinion, but in 1860 the Comstock lode was struck and since then billions of dollars in silver have come from the western mountains.

"Traces of tin have been found for years in North Carolina and in Dakota, but they were only traces and assays proved that the percentage of tin was too low to make it worth while to mine it. This is the first discovery of deep, persistent veins of Greisen, or tin-bearing rock, on this continent, and the work we have carried on and the numerous assays we have made show beyond peradventure that we have tin of the same or better quality than is mined in the few other successful tin mines of the world."

The World's Tin.

"Where does the world's supply of tin now come from?" I enquired.

"From Cornwall, England, where it has been worked since the time of the Phoenicians, from the islands of Banca and Billiton, the Malay peninsula, Australia, Tasmania and from a few mines located on the border between Peru and Bolivia. From these widely separated mines, the 'black tin,' which is what we have here, is sent to England and Holland for refining into block tin. Black tin is Cassiterite or Tin Oxide, and this yields practically all the tin of commerce."

The professor stooped and picked up a piece of ore as big as my hat. The rock was light gray or whitish in color and was speckled like a coach dog with black particles, and on his breaking the rock open with a hammer I saw that these particles permeated the mass and ranged in size from a pin head to pieces as large as a dime. "These black particles are black tin," he continued, "and they contain from 60 per cent to 70 per cent of pure metallic tin."

"Well," said I, "how much of this black tin do you have to find in a ton of rock to make it pay?"

"In Tasmania mines are being worked successfully which yield three-fourths of 1 per cent of black tin to a ton of rock. Ore averaging one-half of 1 per cent will about pay expenses. We have made hundreds of tests and assays of the ore taken from different points within a distance of two miles on our veins and they show that we have an average of over 2 per cent of black tin to the ton of rock mined, which makes our ore average richer than that now being mined in other parts of the world. Then we can mine cheaper here than elsewhere. Our ore for years to come will be taken out from veins comparatively near the surface, whereas in Cornwall it is now being mined over 3,000 feet deep from the solid granite underlying the superficial slates. The mines in Peru and Bolivia are very inaccessible and black tin must be packed out from the mines a considerable distance on mules, notwithstanding which they are producing over fifteen million dollars annually, of which about ten millions is profit."

Tin Staple as Gold.

"Professor, is tin a staple article of commerce?"

"It is as staple as gold, silver, copper, wheat, corn or any other mineral or vegetable product of that nature. You can draw against it on New York assays just as you can in shipping gold or silver; but come, let us go down into the mine.

"Our property is one-half mile wide and extends a distance of three miles northeast and southwest and is shaped so as to cover the extent of three great main veins, which have been proven nearly the entire distance, and of several other veins lying between them which have not been thoroughly explored as yet. As your time is limited, we will go down this shaft nearest at hand. It will give you an idea of what a tin mine looks like."

The structure at the top of the shaft contained a steam pump and a steam hoist. We rode down in the bucket used in hoisting the ore.

On one side of the shaft appeared the broken slate strata and on the other the vein of Greisen rock bearing the black tin. We went down 50 feet and stopped at the first level, which runs several hundred feet across the country and cuts the other two main tin veins in its course. These levels are tunnels 7 feet high and 6 feet wide, timbered in some places and with room enough for an ore car to run on a track at one side. When we reached the second vein we came to a drive at right angles to our course, running along the side of the vein and with borings penetrating through it every few feet. This drive is a tunnel exactly like the first one and runs hundreds of feet each way along the vein. We proceeded along the 50-foot level again and a hundred feet or so further on struck another vein of tin ore, which did not run up to the surface and was found when the level was put through. It was interesting to observe the manner in which the slate appeared in strata on either side of this vein, which was in the neighborhood of four feet in thickness, the line of strata being plainly traced up to the edge of the vein and starting again on the other side, just as though a giant tin wedge had been driven up through it splitting it in twain. Proceeding some distance further, we came to a vertical shaft which has been sunk beside still another vein of tin ore 10 to 14 feet thick, the shaft extending down 60 feet.

Formation of Tin.

"Now," said Professor Furman, "this ore didn't come from the sky, nor did it come from the surrounding strata of slate; it came up millions of years ago from molten matter below and, judging by all that has been learned in mining heretofore, there is every reason to conclude that these veins continue down indefinitely, in fact deeper than mining can be carried on by man. We have run a drive at right angles here on this vein for several hundred feet in each direction and find that the ore-bearing rock or Greisen persists at every point."

Every time we struck a vein of ore I was surprised to note how even my unaccustomed eye could pick out the exact line of demarcation between the surrounding slate strata and the wall of the ore vein. They are very much like vertical ham sandwiches. It doesn't take an expert's eye to tell the difference between the ham and the bread on either side of it. We now went down 50 feet to a level 100 feet below the surface. The shaft that we descended runs on the side of another vein, the continuity of which has been traced—without a break—from the surface down more than 100 feet, and at the bottom of this shaft we came upon another drive, running along the face of the vein 50 feet below the upper drive and directly under it.

"Our object in putting in these drives on these veins, one below the other, as you see, has been to prove the existence of the ore, not only as regards the depth, but also to make sure that it continues north and south without intermission. Hundreds of samples have been taken from the extreme ends of our drives and at various depths in the shafts, the whole lumped together, crushed and then assayed. This gives us an assay showing the average for all of the ore now in sight. Some of it runs as high as 17 per cent of black tin to the ton. This is very rich ore, indeed. The average, however, runs well over 2 per cent, which shows that we have got a big paying proposition and we have not actually tested one-twentieth of the extent of the veins."

We proceeded some hundred feet along the hundred-foot level and came to the shaft we had originally descended and which we left at the fifty-foot level, and going on a further distance still we came to the vein which had originally started down along the side of the hundred-foot shaft. It had veered in its course to one side and then continued down vertically again. A drive has been put in at right angles to the hundred-foot level on this vein also and we proceeded along this drive to some distance in one direction. In all of these drives men are at work picking and drilling, extending the drives along the veins northeast and southwest, all the time bringing into view more ore and demonstrating the continuity of the original veins.

A Rich Mine.

"The policy which I have pursued the past year," said the professor, as we returned to the shaft and went up 100 feet to the surface, where the sun looked mighty good again, I can tell you, "has been to carry on the work of development, so as to absolutely assure ourselves that we have indeed a rich tin mine. We could have put down a single shaft, installed crushing, milling and other machinery and have jumped into the market, but we would not then have demonstrated the facts that we now have before us. It has taken us eighteen months to make these extensive preliminary developments, and as a result we have been able to add to the almost unlimited list of varied resources of this great country the metal TIN."

I was so much amazed at all I had seen and been told, that I began to feel a little like the man from Missouri, and, to reassure my faltering faith, I casually asked who the various assays had been made by and who removed the specimens of ore from the mine from which the assays were made. I doubt if the motive for my question was suspected, but if it was it was graciously overlooked, and Mr. Furman replied: "We ourselves have made countless tests and assays from time to time as we have gone ahead with the work. Some time ago Professor W. S. Yates, the state geologist of Georgia, was commissioned by Judge Spencer R. Atkinson and the Hon. Colquitt Carter, of Atlanta, both of whom are now directors in our company, to come over here and make a thorough examination of the property and to report on the tin deposits. Professor Yates took away with him about one hundred pounds of ore collected from numerous exposures, and after having a careful assay made by Dr. Edgar Everhart, Ph.D., he reported an average of 3.80 per cent metallic tin. Mr. Carter himself came over to the mines and obtained several samples of the ore, taken at pleasure by him from different portions of the property that he visited, and an assay made by the N. P. Pratt laboratory showed one sample to contain as high as 17.56 per cent tin and the lowest 2.81 per cent; the average for the five samples assayed by them was 7.43 per cent metallic tin. I might also say that Mr. John M. McCandless, state chemist for Georgia, made three analyses, showing 4.30 per cent, 2.20 per cent and 9.80 per cent metallic tin, respectively. So, you see, I am putting the average very low indeed when I say that we expect to realize something over 2 per cent metallic tin for every ton of ore we mine."

I must confess that these facts completely dispelled what doubts I had had and caused me to renounce Missouri and become again a Georgian.

Treating the Ore.

"When you get your ore out, professor, how is it treated?" I asked.

"The separation of the black tin of commerce from the ore of the mine is really one of the simplest operations imaginable. We simply crush the rock in a Blake crusher, after that passing it through a Huntington mill. It then goes to washing tables, where the separation of the black tin from the rock is accomplished by use of water alone. The tin, being almost as heavy as lead ore, sinks to the bottom, while the lighter rock material is washed off. The black tin thus gathered together is known as 'tin concentrates,' and is then ready for market."

"How many tons of ore will you handle per day?"

"One hundred tons at the start," he replied.

"What profit per ton of ore handled do you figure on making on 2 per cent ore?"

"At the present price of tin we will net $10 profit on every ton of 2 per cent ore we mine and crush."

"That, professor, will give you a profit of $1,000 per day."

"Yes, sir, and I may say to you that we have enough ore on hand to keep running at full capacity for eighteen months. What is more, the amount we have brought into sight is not one three-thousandth part of what we have stored away for future developments.

"We are not banking on prospects, but on the actual tin in hand, and we confidently believe that in the course of a year's time we will have one of the biggest industries in the south in the states."

FUNERAL TODAY OF JOSEPH HITT

Well Known Newspaper Man Will be Interred in Augusta.

The body of Joseph Woolfolk Hitt, aged 31 years, was taken to Augusta last night. Funeral services and burial will take place in that city today.

Yesterday morning, at 2:30 o'clock, after a continued illness for five years, Mr. Hitt passed away at the home of his mother, Mrs. Lucy W. Hitt, 386 Spring street. He is survived by his mother, one sister, Miss Lucile Hitt, and two brothers, W. M. and E. G. Hitt. He was well known throughout the south, and especially in newspaper circles.

Mr. Hitt was born in Augusta, and started his newspaper career there on The Augusta Caronicle, under Senator Patrick Walsh. He worked for The Chronicle for some time, changing later to The Augusta Evening News, which was one of the first evening papers published in the south. He left The News to come to Atlanta, and worked for The Journal. His creditable work on that paper attracted wide attention, so that he was given a position on The New York Times. Leaving New York he became editor of Tom Martin's "Dixie." Leaving this, he accepted the position of telegraph editor for the old Atlanta News. From The News he went to New Orleans on The Times-Democrat. At this time his health failed, and he was compelled to go to Arizona. He returned to Atlanta some six months ago, never regaining full strength.

Because linen leaves out some features you find in wool or cotton and adds some you don't find. And what it adds and what it leaves out is in the wearer's favor.

Linen is the most absorbent of all materials, and herein lies the great advantage of linen wearables--

It absorbs and radiates moisture and disposes of all pore exhalations. It modifies the extremes of outside temperature in order to prevent taking cold. It does not irritate the skin.

"Flaxall"--as the name implies is absolutely all linen, and the best of all linen--guaranteed. Its tensile strength is greater than any other linen mesh underwear on the market.

ASPHALT IS LAID ON FOUR BLOCKS

Only One Side of the Street Has Been Paved.

The Work May Be Completed Before April—The Georgia Railway and Electric Company Is Laying New Rails From Pine to Sixth Street.

On the east side of the car tracks, Peachtree street is now dressed in new asphalt from Ellis to Baker streets, that being the extent of the work completed since the paving force began operations about November 12.

This does not include the five-foot strip between the double tracks, which is known to the street department of the city as the "Dutchman," not having been worked on.

From Baker to Forrest avenue the foundation for the asphalt proper has been laid on the east side and the finishing will soon follow.

Yesterday a number of hands commenced tearing up the old pavement on the west side, beginning at Ellis street, and if good weather prevails the paving of the full street will be pushed rapidly forward.

Commissioner of Public Works Collier stated yesterday that he hardly thought it possible that the entire pavement from Ellis to Sixth street could be completed until April, although in case of good weather the work might be done before that time. Work began about the middle of November, and up to date not quite half the street for four blocks has been paved, leaving a long stretch from Ivy street to Sixth street yet untouched.

However, it is possible that a larger force of hands may be placed at work and thus the paving hurried. It is impossible to pave more than one side of the street at a time, or to tear up old paving far ahead, on account of traffic which, even as it is, has been suffering congestion where the operations are going on.

The Georgia Railway and Electric Company is beginning to lay new rails ahead of the street paving force and will have entirely new track from Pine to Sixth streets.

The rails on the Peachtree line weigh 62 pounds to the yard, while the new ones, the heaviest ever laid in the south, will weigh 109 pounds to the yard, thus affording the company an excellent road bed in that part of the street where the cars can make the fastest time. The rails will be placed on a concrete bed and the work of laying them will precede that of the paving forve, thus causing no delay.

CONFERENCE ON IN WASHINGTON

Employees and Officials of Southern Hold Meeting.

Switchmen, Trainmen and Conductors Are Seeking an Increase in Wages—Strike Is Probable if the Increase Is Denied by the Southern.

Word was received from the delegates representing the Order of Railway Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen at Washington yesterday to the effect that the conference with the chief executives of the Southern railway was progressing, although no action of a definite nature had been taken. As stated in The Constitution of yesterday, these delegates, representing every division of the Southern railway, are now conferring with the chief officials for the purpose of securing a 10 per cent increase in wages so far as the conductors are concerned, while the switchmen and trainmen are asking for what they term the standard scale, which will also amount to practically a 10 per cent increase in their pay.

As was stated, these delegates representing the two orders have gone to Washington with instructions to remain until the increase in wages was agreed to or the request flatly refused, but to tolerate no compromises or permit of no postponements. In case the increase is refused, it is stated on good authority that both organizations will declare a strike and that all of the conductors and the switchmen and trainmen who are now associated in the B. R. T. will go out on strike.

It was also stated yesterday that the telegraph operators and block signal operators were all prepared to place their cleams before the chief excutives as soon as the present conference between the delegates of the conductors' organization and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen was concluded. It is alleged that they will set forth in their statement that many of the recent wrecks and accidents, including the death of President Samuel Spencer, have been due to the fact that young and inexperienced men have been employed to take the place of the more experienced operators who have left the road to secure better wages elsewhere, and that it will be only by the paying of better wages that the Southern railway will be able to secure the best and most efficient operators.

By setting forth the fact that the block signal operators who hold the responsibility of both human lives and millions of dollars worth of property, are now receiving but $50 to $55 and $60 per month, wages at which married men are unable to bring up their families with the tremendous increase in the expenses of living, these operators feel confident that the public will back them up in their demand for more money rather than see their places taken by the inexperienced and incompetent.

All of the railroad men who are actively interested in this present conference are asking about 10 per cent increase in wages, and say that if this is denied a strike will be declared and the entire Southern railway system tied up, and also that they have plenty of assurances that the other railroads in the south will follow along the same lines.

Railway Notes.

A number of prominent passenger officials of the southeastern roads met yesterday in the offices of Chairman Joseph Richardson, of the Southeastern Passenger Association. There were several general passenger agents present at the conference, which was for the purpose of considering the requirements for the filing of tariffs under the new rate law and to come to some final agreement as to a uniform method of filing.

General Passenger Agent W. H. Tayloe, of the Southern railway, is one of the several passenger officials in Atlanta attending a session of railroad men. Mr. Tayloe is apparently in the vedy best of health and was cordially welcomed by many of his old friends.

General Passenger Agent C. L. Stone, of the Louisville and Nashville, Atlanta's new road, with the first through passenger train from Cincinnati and the north arriving Monday, was another visitor. He was congratulated by many on the promised service and equipment between Atlanta and the north. General Passenger Agent C. B. Ryan, of the Seaboard, one of the most popular of the many passenger officials who come to Atlanta, was another visitor. Among the others were General Passenger Agent W. J. Craig, of the Atlantic Coast Line; General Passenger Agent C. B. Rhodes, of the Georgia Southern and Florida; General Passenger Agent J. C. Haile, of the Central of Georgia.

It was announced yesterday that the officials of the Brunswick Steamship Company, so closely affiliated with the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad, had purchased docks on the North river in the very center of New York city. It is stated also that the location is one of the most central in the city, with a large frontage, warehouses and the very best accommodation possible for southern shippers. This will mean much to Atlanta shippers, as the business of this Brunswick Steamship Company between New York and Atlanta is rapidly increasing. The steamship Ogeechee, the second of the new freight steamships of this line plying between New oYrk and Brunswick, starts on her maiden trip southward today.

While many changes have been announced in the matter of the new schedules on several of the railroads running into Atlanta, some of the officials are still waiting for the official figures, although the changed service is to begin operation on Sunday and Monday.

Railroad clerks and others on salaried positions are hoping that any increase in wages will be sufficiently general to include an increase in their pay roll. They claim that while they have no organization, and do not contemplate any strike, or even any remonstrance but that the increased cost of living affects them quite as much as it does the conductors and trainmen.

There was a meeting of the chief rate clerks of the southeastern lines in the Equitable building yesterday, at which a number of men were present from roads throughout the southeast. Routine matters were up for consideration, and it is probable that the sessions will continue for several days.

A wrecked freight train just north of Spartanburg was reported on the Southern railway early yesterday morning. While no particulars were reported, it was stated that the through trains from the east would be held for several hours until the wreckage could be cleared away, and that sufficient time would be needed to require the running of train 35 from New York on the time of train 39 from Washington.

TOO MUCH WATER IN OLD KENTUCKY

Railroad Traffic Demoralized by the Heavy Rains.

Ohio, Kentucky and Licking Rivers Rising Rapidly—The Ohio, at Louisville, Yesterday Rose at the Rate of a Foot an Hour.

Louisville, Ky., January 4.—Traffic on all railroads operating in the western section of Kentucky, and on several lines in other parts of the state, is demoralized as a result of heavy rains during the last few days. All creeks and rivers in the southern and western portions of the state are out of their banks. In and around Henderson, the Illinois Central, Louisville and Nashville and Henderson railroad tracks are under water, so that the trains cannot pass. Many trains have been annulled entirely.

The rain has been general, even in the eastern section of the state, and the Licking and Kentucky rivers are rising rapidly. Heavy rains fell yesterday, but reports today indicate clearing and much colder weather.

In Louisville the temperature fell 20 degrees during the night.

The biggest rise in years in the Ohio developed overnight, when a boom that at one time seemed to protend a flood stage developed. For a time the river rose at the rate of a foot an hour. This morning the official gauge registered 16 feet 8 inches on the falls, 19 feet in the canal and 44 feet 2 inches at the foot of the locks. By noon the rise was checked somewhat, the increase being at the rate of 4 inches per hour.

High Water Closes Schools.

Princeton, Ind., January 4.—Fifteen schools in Gibson county have been closed by the high waters. Nearly one-third of Wabash township is under water. The pumping station, which supplies this city with water, was closed yesterday, the water having risen above the machinery.

Fleeing for Their Lives.

Terre Haute, Ind., January 4.—High waters and threatened floods are reported from different parts of southwestern Indiana, along the Wabash and White rivers. At Taylorville, opposite this city, the bottoms are under water and the 700 inhabitants of the town began moving out today. At the confluence of the Wabash and White rivers, in Knox county, farmers are fleeing with their families.

BIG MILL GIVES A BANQUET.

Eagle and Phenix Annual Banquet Brings Out Interesting Facts.

Columbus, Ga., January 4.—(Special.)—The fifth annual new year's banquet given by the Eagle and Phenix mills to its overseers, office employees and officials, took place last evening on the stage of Springer opera house, and was a most interesting occasion.

There were 52 guests, which numbered several of the out-of-town directors. An elaborate menu was served, following which quite a number of short addresses were made, Charles L. Pierce, secretary, of the mills, acting as toastmaster.

Among the interesting facts developed during the speeches was that during the past year the Eagle and Phenix mills made 8,480,723 pounds of cloth, which if reduced to yard width would extend 16,864 miles. If reduced to yarn, No. 13 size, it would extend across 52,699,037 miles of space—a cotton thread that could wrap around the world 2,113 times. The production of the plant increased steadily during the year, and all records in the output of cloth were broken during November. During the year over 20,000 bales of cotton were bought by the company at a cost of over $1,000,000. In wages the handsome sum of $561,640 was paid out in 1906. Six per cent dividends were paid the stockholders.

ATLANTA BARS FREE MEDICINE

Board of Health Taboos the Patent Medicine Distribution.

The board of health yesterday afternoon tabooed the free distribution of patent medicines in the city, passing, without dissent, a decree to that effect.

The way in which the matter came up was through a petition from a well known medicine firm, asking that it be permitted to distribute small samples to adults in Atlanta, stating in the petition that the medicine contained but a very little alcohol. A motion was made to act unfavorably on the petition, and was later amended so as to include all patent medicines, making the long prevalent custom of giving way medicine samples a thing of the past.

The idea in doing away with this practice is to prevent parties having little knowledge of the use of medicines using any kind that comes to their homes for all kinds of diseases, and thus becoming liable to harm from the drug. It was thought best by the board that persons wishing patent medicines should go to drug stores and purchase them.

Several abatioir matters came up, and all of them were referred to the special committee. It was asked by one builder of a slaughter house that he be permitted to place a grating over the required concrete floor to keep slaughtered animals from getting in the blood of another when they are killed in rapid succession, as is the case with large dealers. After some discussion he was advised to confer with the committee.

The election of officers and reorganization of the board was deferred until a call meeting, to take place Wednesday afternoon, at 5 o'clock.

This was deemed advisable, as several new members are to take the oath of office, and they should have votes in the reorganization.

HARRIMAN CZAR OF THE RAILROADS

Developments at the Interstate Commission Hearing.

Shown That Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Oregon Lines Are Under Same Management, Harriman President of Each.

New York, January 4.—Modern methods of combining and consolidating mammoth railway systems and extending the principle of community of interest, were delved into today at great length by the interstate commerce commission, which began in this city an inquiry into the so-called Harriman lines. From here the commission goes next week to Chicago. The object of the commission is to determine whether the Harriman lines, or any of the railroads of the country, are consolidated or combined in restraint of trade.

At today's hearing it was brought out, and admitted, that the Union Pacific Railroad Company, the Southern Pacific Company, the Oregon Short Line and the Oregon Railroad and Navigation Company are practically under the same administration, Mr. Harriman appearing as president of each company, with only slight variations in the lists of other officers. It was further shown that the Southern Pacific Company owns the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, and that the Southern Pacific Company and the Harriman interests are in control of the Portland and Asiatic Steamship Company. All three of these companies run steamers either between San Francisco and Portland and the Orient.

It is said that the Occidental Steamship Company is extinct, but it still operates two steamers.

Owns the Steamships.

On the Atlantic ocean it was shown that the Southern Pacific owns the lines of steamers running between New York and New Orleans, formerly known as the Morgan line. The Union Pacific, by means of an agreement signed by Mr. Harriman and Senator William A. Clark, has a traffic arrangement with the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake railway, extending over a period of ninety-nine years. The San Pedro cannot raise or lower its rates without the consent of the Southern Pacific company, which, it was stated, does not own one dollar of stock in the San Pedro company.

The Union Pacific exercises joint control with the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway, over the Chicago and Alton railway. The agreement is that the Union Pacific shall have charge of the road one year and the Rock Island the next. The Union Pacific owns $268,123,100 worth of stock or 29.59 per cent of the capitalization of the Illinois Central railroad.

The Union Pacific also owns $50,802,300 worth of stock of the St. Joseph and Grand Island railroad, which is 37.37 per cent of the whole.

CAN'T BLUFF ME, SAYS UNCLE LON

Congressman Laughs at Talk of Libel.

Representative Livingston Says the Board of Managers of New York Cotton Exchange Are Playing Losing Game Trying to Bluff Him.

Washington, January 4.—Representative Livingston, of Georgia, today made the following statement concerning the action in New York yesterday of the board of managers of the New York Cotton Exchange in deciding to consult counsel as to the advisability of bringing suits for libel against himself and President Jordan, of the Southern Cotton Growers' Association, for their recent action in asking the postoffice department for a fraud order against the exchange:

"It is a losing game if they think they can bluff me out by threatening libel proceedings. An attempt is being made to cloud the issue by asserting that I am after the New York Cotton Exchange as a body. I am after the governing body, the steering committee composed of about fifteen men, who are responsible for existing conditions. There are many honest men in the exchange."

Dr. Jameson's Mother Ill.

Macon, Ga., January 4.—(Special.)—Dr. S. Y. Jameson was called today to Monroe, Ga., by message, informing him that his mother, Mrs. Matthewson, was critically ill. Dr. Jameson had entered upon the duties of the new year with the students of Mercer yesterday, and the call from his mother's bedside was a sudden surprise. He hurried to Monroe, and will be with her in her illness. Deep concern for her welfare is felt at Mercer.

The prisoner captured was a negro who gave his name as Mose McCutcheon. He was carried before the authorities in Albany and placed under bond of $150 to appear next Monday to answer to the charge of illicit distilling.

ATLANTA, GA., January 5, 1907.

The pace that kills—six yards start of the New Year bailiff on a rocky road.

Social life in Pittsburg: "The local burglars made numerous New Year calls."

The Chinese boycott is becoming general, but they can't turn down that ticket for the laundry.

It is said the Kansas jails are full. This may cause Kansas to take a sober view of the situation.

Cuba can't complain of the "outlook." According to her spokesmen, she has tons and tons of it.

"The house had a session of fifteen minutes only." My, but those congressmen must have been dry!

Governor Magoon has had offers to take the lecture platform and tell what is not the matter with Cuba.

When they get the governor of Pennsylvania in a corner he quotes Confucius to confuse the ignorant.

The paper drinking cup is the latest, but steady drinking will cause a man to sign away all the paper in reach.

Having cut out the cocktail, the New Year reformed is now busy figuring on his ability to meet the milk bill.

The New York Cotton Exchange has invoked the aid of the lawyers. If they don't finish it its case is hopeless.

Seventeen trains on time! Now, if we get the subtreasury, our brimming cup of happiness will drip down the sides.

Glad to hear that money is "steady." If it had kept up the New Year wobble we would never have known where to have it.

We doubt if Taft will succeed as a writer for the magazines. He has not the lean, hungry and lonesome look of the true son of genius.

Occasionally the trains vary the monotony by plunging in washouts. This may be better for passengers who object to cremation.

Secretary Shaw has been lecturing school children on how to succeed financially—just as if he had never seen a baby grab at a silver dollar!

Why should a man kill himself because he is without office? Some that are in office are so dead that they wouldn't feel the infusion of embalming fluid.

It is a wonder the president has any time for literature. But, then, we have no critics who are candid enough to tell him that what he writes isn't literature.

Planting trees along its lines is a fad of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. But wouldn't it be better to give the trains a clear field when they jump the rails?

A Texas man saw a flaming sword in the sky at 4 a. m. New Year's. No doubt he's some relation to the man who reported elephants playing leapfrog on the ceiling.

How can you walk the straight road in the New Year when, if you succeed in dodging the trolley car, it's ten to one the automobile will curve you into an interrogation?

GETTING IN LINE!

It is more than gratifying to note that the members of council are falling over each other to get in line against the mayor's veto of the high license ordinance.

Four more have added their names to the list of those who are ready to give the people what they want—Alderman J. S. Holland, Councilman A. L. Curtis, Charles L. Chosewood and William Oldknow.

Thus are twenty members of council in line with the people and ready to conform to their wishes—four more than enough to override the veto of Mayor Woodward and make the high license ordinance city law.

Let the good work go on!

The clarion call has sounded; don't delay the hunt!

There are three more members to be heard from. Let them take a bold, brave stand now in behalf of the people.

Come, on, gentlemen, and enroll yourselves with the people whom you represent.

You can't stop it now by your vote, so why not make it unanimous!

DON'T BE "PUSSY-FOOTED" ON APPROPRIATIONS.

Federal appropriations to aid the states in the education of their illiterate population was an important and interesting subject discussed by the department of superintendence of the Southern Educational Association at its recent meeting in Montgomery, Ala.

The sentiment of the department as expressed in its vote against the proposition by 50 to 2, was well summed up in the following extract upon that occasion from remarks made by State School Commissioner W. B. Merritt, of Georgia.

> We don't want government appropriations to educate our people. If the government gives us money, the government will want to have the disposition of it. They will want to have a hand in the appointment of teachers. Further, they will want to interfere in other ways. We are able to handle the problem without national interference.

We agree with the department and with Commissioner Merritt in so far as federal interference with our schools is concerned. Of course, no state wants or would tolerate that.

But if we can induce the general government to extend us aid for education, from common school to college, without the string of interference tied to it, by all means let us do it and take all we can get.

The states of the south are, and always have been, far from getting their fair share in the distribution which the general government makes. Vast sums in indirect taxes are collected for pensions and other expenditures, very little of which finds its way back into this section of the country, while other sections are fattening on what we pay.

There is no cause to which federal aid could be better extended than to education throughout the country, so long as such appropriations are expended under state administrations, just as the Morrill fund is today.

By all means, let's get what we can from the federal government for education and for advancement along other lines. The states are fully able to take care of the expenditure of such funds, and to see that they are directed into the proper channels.

S. M. Inman's Communication.

We publish elsewhere a striking communication from S. M. Inman, one of the south's foremost business men, in which he commends the recent report of the general committee charged with distributing funds for the victims of the Atlanta riot.

In speaking of the lesson of this report and the incidents which gave rise to it, Mr. Inman well says:

> It seems to me that the principal reparation that can be made to those who gave up their lives is for the people in the future to treat in a more just and kindly spirit those of the negro race among us who are free from wrongdoing. There is too much disposition to lay upon them as a whole the sins of a few of the race.

It is just this disposition that the people of Georgia, of the south, have got to weed out, if they would establish a permanent race peace. To get rid of this disposition to hold an entire race responsible for the crimes of a few of its members is one of the chief duties which the white people of the south owe, not alone to the weaker race, but to themselves and their posterity.

It is, as Mr. Inman says, just as wrong for the people of the south to nurture a prejudice against the entire race because of the acts of a few of its members, as it was for the people of other sections to hold all Atlanta to account for the acts of a few lawless inhabitants on September 22. Here is an instance in which the lesson is brought right home to us.

The Civic League and the Business Men's Gospel Union of Atlanta, under the direction of former Governor William J. Northen, are now engaged in this very work—the work of inculcating in the people of the entire state these principles of justice and kindly treatment, and upon no other basis can we hope for a lasting peace.

The question of good feeling between the races is largely a local one. The situation must be dealt with and mastered locally. But when one community has found the way to do it and has demonstrated it, the principles by which the successful solution was brought about will necessarily spread to other communities and to other states, covering at last the entire country.

Mr. Inman has touched the keynote of the situation in his brief card. We commend its careful reading to every one and everywhere.

The Industrial Index.

Columbus has a long-needed and valuable industrial publication in The Industrial Index, which is being issued in that city by W. C. Woodall & Bro., proprietors and publishers. There is no better field in Georgia than this for a publication dealing with industrial and commercial progress. Not only is Columbus itself an important manufacturing and commercial center, but situated on the Alabama line as it is, the field thus becomes a doubly important one wherein such a paper may fulfill a valuable mission. That The Industrial Index is doing this is readily apparent, not only from its character and contents, but from the fact that the Messrs. Woodall are men of wide newspaper experience, active, energetic and well qualified to push to success such a work as this. And in their own success they will contribute no little to that of the community which is the home of their publication.

Anti-Opium Movement.

A remarkable story comes from the Far East, vouched for in a government consular report, of the discovery of a plant which in a comparatively short time completely cures the opium habit, entirely removing the desire to "hit the pipe."

As a result of this discovery it is said the anti-opium movement, particularly in Malay, has become nothing short of colossal. Says the report of this apparently wonderful opium habit cure:

> So rapidly has it spread and so popular has it become that it reminds one more of a Welsh revival than a movement undertaken by the stolid Chinese. When the news of the movement first came from China a few enthusiasts took up the matter in Singapore and opened a free hospital for the cure of smokers, but very little progress was made. A few weeks ago, however, a well-to-do Chinaman in Kuala Lumpur, the capital of Selangor, received from China specimens of a plant which was said to be a cure for the opium habit. A short search revealed the fact that the plant grew freely in Selangor in a wild state, and in a very short time a quantity was obtained and active operations commenced. The leaves of the plant, which appears to be a shrub somewhat akin to gambier, are exposed to the sun for a day, then chopped fine and roasted, after which an infusion is made and the specific is ready for use. The first man experimented upon was a coolie employed by a European lady, and although he was a confirmed opium smoker, he was pronounced cured in a week.
>
> This specific is now being distributed free of cost by the anti-opium societies, which are springing up everywhere in the eastern countries, and so great is the demand that the dispensaries are hard pushed to keep up with it. In the district above named alone the anti-opiumists claim to have cured 14,000 people in the few short weeks since the plant was discovered.
>
> If the new specific proves permanently effective, as those who have studied it say it will, it appears herein will be found a solution of the opium problem which will largely solve the commercial trade in that insidious drug out of existence. The British may continue to dump it into China, but they cannot force the natives to smoke and consume it, if the taste for it is removed.
>
> It is said already the discovery of the plant and its application have seriously affected the opium industry in certain sections, and in some districts the opium joints have been closing their doors faster than did the Georgia bucketshops on January 1.
>
> It may be the discovery of this plant will in a measure aid in the redemption of these Oriental empires.

Will Not Abandon Fort.

Washington, January 4.—The war department has concluded to go on with the work of reconstructing Fort St. Philip, Louisiana, near the mouth of the Mississippi river. After the work had progressed somewhat it was ordered suspended until such time as the levee in front of the fort, which was badly damaged by last September's hurricane, could be repaired, but in view of the loss to the government which would be occasioned by the delay on this account, it was decided to construct the barracks and run the risk of another storm. It was declared at the department today that there is no intention of abandoning Fort St. Philip or the lower river forts in the vicinity of New Orleans, and that when Fort St. Philip is entirely reconstructed it is the purpose to make it a two company post.

News Notes From Billville.

The New Year ushered in some little race trouble here; but, thanks be to our long training on the race course, we are still six yards ahead of the sheriff.

Since the lid went down on the free pass business we have walked out six pairs of shoes; but we wrote a long article about the fine scenery along the railroad lines and got $50 for it.

So far the weather hasn't been cold enough to make us burn our New Year resolution, but we're on good terms with the weather bureau, and we're still hoping.

The Chinese boycott of American goods has extended to the Chinaman in our midst, but we have succeeded in surrounding him, and we have great hopes of getting our shirt before council meets, when we are to be inaugurated as alderman.

GOSSIP AT THE CAPITOL

IN an interview published in yesterday's Constitution, former Governor W. J. Northen, head of the Civic League of Atlanta, evidently, without intention, overlooked the fact that large and sweeping rewards were offered by Governor Terrell for the apprehension of the men who were responsible for the murders of innocent negroes and for assaults with intent to murder in connection with the Atlanta riot of September 22.

Goveror Northen is quoted as saying that he was asked at Cordele how it was that Vardaman, of Mississippi, could offer $500 reward for each of three white men who killed an innocent negro farmer, while the state of Georgia had up to this time failed to offer any reward for the apprehension of those responsible for murders and assaults with intent to murder in the case of the Atlanta riot. Governor Northen intimated that the case was one which it would be well for the Civic League to investigate.

As a matter of fact, Governor Terrell offered one of the most sweeping rewards in this case that has ever been offered in the state. In fact, rewards were offered both by the state and by the city council of Atlanta, thus practically doubling the amount.

Governor Terrell, almost immediately following the riot, offered a reward of $200 each for the first five men implicated in the crimes of murder or assault with intent to murder; $100 each for the next ten arrested and convicted, and $50 each for each subsequent arrest and conviction. Similar rewards were offered by the city of Atlanta, and all of these rewards are still outstanding and ready to be paid as soon as arrests are made and convictions secured.

School Tax Notices.

Comptroller General W. A. Wright is sending out notices to all the county school commissioners of the state, notifying them that they will have to furnish a description of the boundaries of all school districts in which local school taxes are to be collected, to such corporations as own property within the district, and are required to make their returns to the comptroller general. This is to be done in order that the corporation may know just what property it has within the district, and it will be required to make a special return of this property upon a blank prepared for the purpose by the comptroller general, so that the special school tax may be collected. The comptroller general will have this special feature added to the blanks upon which corporations now make their returns to him, and he will notify the authorities in all school districts where a local school tax is levied, of the amount due them for school purposes from such corporations. This is the tax levied under the McMichael bill where the people of the district have voted for it. There are several entire counties in the state also where this tax is collected.

Marble Company's Railroad.

The railroad commission had before it yesterday the question of assuming jurisdiction over a little marble road in north Georgia running from the quarries of the Georgia Marble Company and the Southern Marble Company over to Tate, Ga., where it connects with the Louisville and Nashville. It was claimed that the road is a common carrier, and, that as such, the commission should take jurisdiction. The owners of the road, among them Sam Tate, president of the Georgia Marble Company, stated that the road belongs entirely to these two companies, and hauls no freight for anyone else, unless it be occasionally for accomodation, when no charge is made. Neither is any charge made for carrying passengers. It was shown that the road does no business except for the two companies which own it, and by them a charge of 2 1-2 cents per 100 pounds is made for hauling marble, this being equivalent to a drayage charge. The commission took the matter under advisement.

Reward for Incendiary.

On November 4, 1906, a cotton house and four bales of cotton belonging to J. T. Aycock, of Andersonville, Sumter county, were burned, supposedly by an incendiary. Governor Terrell yesterday offered a reward of $100 for the arrest of the criminal with proof to convict.

On the Gordon Monument.

At a meeting of the special committee of the Gordon monument commission held in the governor's office yesterday, it was decided to place two bas-reliefs upon the pedestal of the heroic statue of General John B. Gordon, which will stand upon the state capitol grounds. One of these will represent Generals Lee and Gordon at Spottsylvania on the famous 12th of May, 1864, when Gordon probably saved Lee's life by preventing his leading that famous charge. The other bas-relief will represent General Gordon in three poses: first, as United States senator, made from photograph of 1880; second, as governor standing by his desk, made from photo of 1890; and third, as orator's standing on a stage before a curtain. Upon the front of the base will appear in bronze letters simply: "Gordon." The two bas-reliefs will be made by Solon Borglum, the sculptor, who is now making the bronze equestrian statue of General Gordon.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Governor Northen Corrects.

Editor Constitution: Since the publication of my statement, made on yesterday, covering the matter of rewards for the apprehension and conviction of criminals, I have been informed that Governor Terrell, some weeks ago, offered suitable rewards for the capture, with proof to convict, of such persons as were leaders in the recent mob in this city.

As I have never seen any announcement of this fact, I was not in position to so state when the matter was presented to me by parties in south Georgia. I am glad to make this correction publicly, as I am sure it will settle some complaints that seem to be in the minds of the people. W. J. NORTHEN.

Atlanta, Ga., January 4, 1907.

OUTDOOR ROYAL HONEYMOON.

Prince and Princess of Montenegro Now Spooning in Mountains.

Cettinje, Montenegro, January 4.—The Princess Nathalie of Montenegro and her husband, Prince Mirke, are spending their honeymoon camping out in the wild mountains in this little country. The princess is a skilful and intrepid sportswoman and lover of open air life. She goes about with a rifle, cartridge box and kodak, and is followed by a pet dog. The couple have as an escort a band of mountaineers, armed to the teeth. At night they have a tent pitched for them, which is lighted with lanterns. The mountaineers act as sentries. Princess Nathalie, who is 24 years of age, is the daughter of Count Constantineovitch, cousin to the late King Milan, of Servia. She is related to the queen of Italy and King Peter of Servia.

With Makers & Lovers of Literature

THERE has been much discussion lately as to whether or not southern writers are taking from the glory of the authors of other sections of our common country.

Concerning this matter, an author, writing in one of our southern daily papers, says:

"It has been remarked that the star of literary empire has set itself southward, and westward; especially southward; that the great galaxy of New England literary notables having passed away, a new order of things has ensued, and that the most conspicuous writers of fiction are either of southern or eastern birth. Mrs. Burton Harrison, William D. Howells, G. W. Cable and many others were either from the south or the east. Fiction has found, more than ever, within late years, many southern exponents; and only southern writers have understood, and can illuminate the conditions of the section in a heartfelt and sincere way.

"It is obvious that the sharp criticism of Brady's 'The Southerners,' is wholly due to its author not having been to 'the manor born'—Mr. Brady was kindly intentioned, but no southerner will ever read his book without a feeling of misrepresentation, simply because the writer did not understand the heart of the southerner or his circumstances. And this is but a just criticism of all northern authors who have chosen southern themes.

"They seem to have forgotten that 'the essential quality of success' is for the author to be thoroughly saturated with the life and atmosphere of his chosen locale.' The romantic possibilities of this section are apparent to those in search of 'material,' but the beauty of the simplicity of our conditions is lost upon the novelist with the sensational motive; and so the very thing that should most attract an audience to him is by himself uncomprehended. The 'true to nature' in the south is so unaffected that any effort for effect mars the picture.

"One of the very finest examples of sincerity in fiction is 'The Legatee.' Mrs. Smith, the author, was carried to the lumber village when she was 11 years old, and so she may be considered a western novelist. She grew up with a wise understanding of the conditions surrounding her, and has produced a work very modern, and with a sincere delineation very unusual in the last few years. The intensity in feeling, the rapidity of narration, the richness of incident and the fine dialogue make this novelist's work consistent with her environment, and this goes far toward making any work of fiction a work of art."

Mary Washington Early has made a fine summary of southern writers in her work on "Southern Novelists." She finds that John Pendleton Kennedy, born in Baltimore in 1795, was the first southern novelist of prominence; she says that "He sketched southern life very much as Washington Irving has done that of New York; showing such delightful touches of humor and geniality as have led him to be compared and classed with the atuhor of "The Sketch Book." "Horse Shoe Robinson," the best known and most popular of his tales, was written in 1835. Mrs. Terhune wrote "Judith" some time before the civil war, and her work of that time is considered valuable as a picture of old Virginia life and character—her stories are valuable as "sidelights on history."

Mrs. Southworth, Mrs. Hentz, Mrs. Evans received hearty greeting from the public in those old days, and of Mrs. Southworth it was remarked that she won substantial emoluments from her pen while Edgar A. Poe was in danger of starving, and while "Vanity Fair" was being rejected by editor after editor.

Mrs. Evans published "Beulah" in 1859, and it ran through fifteen editions in a few months.

William Gilmore Simms and John Esten Cooke were conspicuous southern writers in the middle times between the old days and the new. Of Simms, Poe said, "He has more vigor, more imagination, more movement and more general capacity than all our novelists combined." He was also alluded to as the Walter Scott of South Carolina. "Both have done for their native lands the same thing, have traced up the stream of history to its source, and from the terra-incognita of legend and tradition, have given us pictures of life in striking and fascinating colors.

"Both have swept dust and grime from the cob-webbed canvas of history with the brush of fiction, and made its dim features salient and attractive." It is gratification to remark on such writers of fiction of the "old south"—and reflect that this was but a small element of our representation in literature. We are told that William Gilmore Simms' "literary fecundity" was wonderful. This reminds us of Collier's article on "The Ways of Authors."

"Literary production is a thing so varied, as exemplified by the output of distinguished authors, that it is impossible to arrive at any general rules governing it. Apart from the quality of literary work, the bulk and rapidity of its creation seem, indeed, to differ with almost every individual scribe."

Concerning Literary Success.

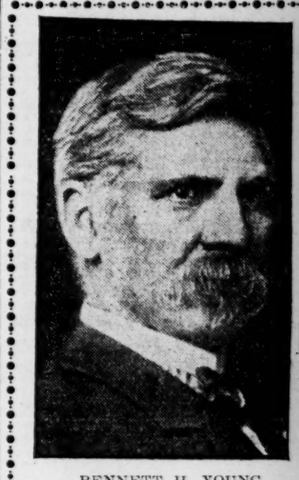
WHAT is the secret of success in the literary avocation is the problem which receives much consideration from the literary aspirant. Perhaps the truest "open sesame" to this most delicate of all applicants for public favor is the ability to think, and think in the rght way. Spontaneous mental effort is certainly often the most agreeable, but behind the engaging spontaneity, are the well trained mental processes, the ability to think clearly on any given subject.

The simplest logical methods are abused in much of the present day fiction; and we are led to believe that the old-time mental drilling, which was a prominent part of the common school curriculum, had much to do with the development of those wonderful logicians which past decades have furnished. Recently we read in an exchange the alarm that some of our later day educators felt over the proposition to give up the logical training which is had in the study of mental arithmetic.

It has been proposed to abandon this exercise in the lower grades of our schools. Remark was made of the ludicrousness of saying: "If James gives ten apples to five boys, each boy will have as many apples as five is contained in ten," when the answer may be so easily guessed. The training of the mind to think is more important than the answer.

When letters are substituted and the problem is thus stated: "If A can do a piece of work in M days, how much of it can he do in N days?" The process of mental arithmetic is the only way by which to secure the answer. In regard to the habit of correct thinking, it is believed that "it is vastly more important that the child be taught how to think correctly than that he know the names and habits of all the bugs in the world."

All process for exciting the thinking powers to active effort, is what is wanted to bring about the thoughtful mind. For it is from thoughtful minds that our best literature is produced. Fresh, original thought is what we demand, and it is the man that can turn a question around and see its every side, that is able to furnish the truth that inspires.



BENNETT H. YOUNG.

Some Real Eloquence.

"KENTUCKY ELOQUENCE" is the title of an inspiring volume just published by Ben LaBree, Jr., of Louisville, Ky. The editor-in-chief of the work was Colonel Bennett H. Young.

It is one of the few books of this class which merits unstinted praise, because within its covers are some of the most lofty bits of eloquence ever put into print.

Not only does the work deal with the eloquence of past orators of Kentucky, but it takes up the leaders in oratory of the present time. It deals therefore with the past and present eloquence and attainments of the great men of the great southern state.

The selections made are very striking and probably represent the best achievements along oratorical, poetical and other lines of the various men whose greatness caused them to be eligible for a place in the volume.

The editor of the work has assisting him Hon. Henry Watterson, Hon. James B. McCreary, Hon. Henry S. Barker, Hon. James H. Mulligan, Colonel Reuben T. Durrett, Professor James K. Patterson, Hon. John Marshall, Hon. W. S. Cox, Rev. E. L. Powell, Captain W. H. Polk and Colonel Ben LaBree.

POINTED TIPS FROM A CRITIC'S QUIVER

"The Epic of Paradise Lost" is the title of a new book. If man ever had a perfect paradise here below, then the least said about its disappearance the better humanity will feel.

A discussion of politics in the time of Plato and Aristotle might be interesting. It is said present day politicians can learn much from a perusal of the work "Political Thought of Plato and Aristotle."

One of the simplest yet sweetest love story published in many a day is Thomas Nelson Page's "On Newfound River."

Brentano announces a book on "Italian Romance Writers." It ought to be rich in all that's romantic if true to life.

"Daily Musings" is one of the best of the "daily thought" books. It is published by Lippincott.

The ramble amongst the cathedrals of Great Britain is a much to be desired occupation. The next best thing is to ramble through Ditchfield's "Cathedrals of Great Britain."

"The Life of Animals" is a good book. It would be better if it took up the study of "human animals," telling of their "habits" as it does of the other kind.

New Books.

The Gate of Death. Cloth. (G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.)

This book, from an anonymous writer, is entitled "A Diary," and purports to be the record of many carefully-prepared considerations of the great subjects of the unseen life and world, and of the passage from this to that. The writer tells how, twice, he was brought to what seemed to be the very gate of death without passing through, and he records what he remembers as his reflections during the weeks in which he was slowly recovering his health and strength. He tells of the changed values of things as he contemplated them from the place of shadows, and of the feelings he came to possess in reference to God, duty, immortality, and all eternal things. For one who is thoughtful there is much to quicken spiritual thought in this serious record of personal feeling.

My Old Bailiwick. By Owen Kildare. Cloth. $1.50. (Fleming H. Revell Co., New York.)

The author of this book writes with such elegance of style, with such sweetness and purity of spirit, and with such tender sympathy of humanity, that it is hard to believe that only a few years ago, and after reaching the years of manhood, he was unable to read or write, and was a member of the abject community he describes. The story of his life is an illustration of the transforming power of a helpful and redemptive love, and his subsequent advances and successes are sources of satisfaction and joy to all who have sympathetic and loving hearts.

Betterment. By E. Wake Cook. Cloth. 12mo. $1.20. (Frederick A. Stokes Co., New York.)

This is a book made up not of essays and theories, but of practical plans for doing things, and for making improvement in individual, social and industrial life. Its object is to give, in compact and convenient form, the latest discoveries which promote individual, industrial and collective efficiency. He discusses the best rules of securing and maintaining physical health, and takes up the consideration of practical plans for the betterment of the classes of our human race that need help from those more highly favored. His work is thoughtful, serious and full of wise and practical suggestions.

TAKING "ARIZONA CURE" BRINGS DEATH TO MANY

Georgian Now in Territory Sounds Warning to Those Anticipating Seeking Health in Southwest—High Cost of Living.

A WELL-KNOWN Georgian who is at present in Tucson, Ariz., where he went some time ago for his health, has written home an interesting letter in which he speaks of the cost of living in the territory and sounds a note of warning to those who think they can go to Arizona with a small sum of money and come back well in a comparatively short time.

According to the writer, one must be well-provided with funds if he wishes to gain the real benefits of the climate, which he describes as ideal. Prices are about double what they are in the states. Eggs, for example, he says, are 75 cents a dozen, and other articles of food in proportion.

Of the climate, the writer has nothing but praise, and he says many apparently hopeless cases of consumption have been completely cured. Commenting on the situation, he gives it as his opinion that the philanthropists of the east instead of sending their money to China and other foreign countries might do well to create a fund for the care of indigent consumptives whose only hope of recovery lies in a climate such as Arizona possesses.

The situation in Arizona is not generally known, the territory being so remote, and for that reason The Constitution reproduces the following editorial from The Tucson Citizen which deals with the facts in the case:

"With the coming of the first real touch of winter in the eastern states an exodus ensues, among those whose purse permits, to less rigorous climes. Another class are perforce compelled to follow the birds in their migration towards a more favored region. These are the sufferers from various ills, mainly the dreaded tubercular affections, who fear to face the snows and sleets of an eastern winter, and, usually under their physician's directions, come to the sunny southwest.

"Arizona sunshine and air are of wonderfully soothing power to such sufferers. In many cases the removal to this dry climate means emancipation from the white plague's chains. To begrudge this blessing which we enjoy would be sinful. It is open and free to all, but, if it is not amiss, we should like to see a better discretion exercised on the part of the physicians or friends who send the unfortunate ones to Arizona.

"Among those who annually seek the southwest there are many who, because of insufficient funds, should never have been permitted to leave their homes in the east, where they at least possessed the means of existence, or if not that, then a just claim upon the public institutions of their homes. Were this class in only moderate ill health, they would find earning a living in Arizona very difficult. Many of them, however, are in such advanced stages that the climate could not possibly aid them and are unable to engage in any occupation.

"While such have no just claim upon our institutions, or even upon private charity, they are still cared for to the greatest possible extent. Our county cases are very largely tubercular patients from other sections of the country. Our taxpayers are unjustly charged with their maintenance, but few there are who would cavil at the expense, and the great pity is that so few can be taken care of in this way. Our local charitable institutions do much, but the task is truly a charity with them.

"If these stricken ones must come, their care is a fit charge for a charitable association of national scope. Of the millions which go for foreign missions from churches all over the union, a tithe might well be collected to maintain in Arizona an open-air health camp with proper comforts and medical attention to which might be sent those sufferers who are not blessed with money and who, for the lack of it, must endure hardship, heartsickness and pain during the months or weeks of life which the climate gives them."

SAML. M. INMAN COMMENDS RIOT COMMITTEE'S REPORT

Editor Constitution: It is seldom I have seen as brave or as just a report upon a delicate subject as the report of Mr. W. G. Cooper and Mr. George Muse, for the general committee charged with distributing funds for the victims of the riot in Atlanta.

The report does something, at least, to make lighter the stain which for long years will darken the fair name of our city. Boldly and clearly it brings out the terrible brutality which spent itself upon the lives and bodies of innocent, law-abiding citizens.

It seems to me that the principal reparation that can be made to those who gave up their lives, is for the people, in the future, to treat in a more just and kindly spirit those of the negro race among us who are free from wrong doing. There is too much disposition to lay upon them as a whole, the sins of a few of the race.

I was struck with the pathos of the appeal of a colored man, in your issue of Wednesday last, in which he asks that such reports as he quoted from Houston, Tex., should not be given circulation through the press at large—reports which put under the ban the black race on account of the lawlessness of a few individuals. It is a fair and just request; and the newspapers of the country could do much to prevent suspicion and condemnation, if they would suppress publication of such matter.

I was north when the Atlanta riot occurred, and was impressed with the wholesale denunciation of the entire white people of Atlanta on account of the brutality and inhumanity of a few men—I felt that it was unfair and unjust to condemn a whole people for the sins of a few—an infinitesimal per cent of the population.

S. M. INMAN.

In the same way I think it wrong to stir up hatred and create prejudice against the negroes of our country, because a few of the most degraded do wrong. The great mass of the colored people of Georgia are hard-working, law-abiding citizens.

If half the publicity were given to those who are trying to do right and live right, that is given to the crimes of a few, our people and the world would view them in a different light.

The press of the country is the arbiter of public opinion, and can create peace or trouble. It holds a position of supreme responsibility. Whether consciously or unconsciously, the actions of a people, its courts and even its juries are influenced by the teachings of the press. All good men should appeal to the press for conservatism, fairness and justice in dealing with a situation upon which depends so largely our future peace and our fair name before the world.

FINE REPORT IS MADE BY STREET COMMITTEE

Committee Recommends Making of Two Underpasses, One on McDaniel Street and Another at Ponders Avenue.

THE street committee of the city council, of which Alderman James L. Key is chairman, met yesterday afternoon, and adopted the report submitted by Mr. Key, relative to the work done in the year 1906.

The departments of city engineer and public works are under the street committee, and a very satisfactory item of the report was that neither had gone over its appropriation for the year; further, that even the expenditures were below the amount appropriated, and a balance was turned back into the city treasury. Out of the balance a new road roller was purchased for $2,000.

There have been during the year more macadam and chert pavings laid than ever before in the history of the department, but much of this is not finished with the chert dressing, due to the fact that there was considerable delay on the part of the transportation companies in delivering the chert. It was reasonably assumed in the report that prompt deliveries would have resulted in the completion of the work.

Another delay was occasioned in obtaining brick for sidewalks, the contractor having utterly failed to comply with the contract. The committee recommended that a change in the manner of contracting for brick would be beneficial, and so that the contract could be properly enforced the contractor should be subjected to some penalty upon failure to comply.

The volume of work passed up in the year has been very large, and much of it of great public interest. For one thing, the South Boulevard underpass, which was originally designed to have only two openings, into Decatur street and South Boulevard, was subsequently enlarged so as to include an opening into North Boulevard, and providing ingress and egress for the Georgia freight yard. This tends to make the yard very accessible, sightly and safe.

The repaving of Peachtree street was one other large undertaking. Asphalt was finally decided upon as the substance having the best known qualities.

The committee had made a report prescribing conditions upon which the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railway should construct its yards and freight lines in the city, the conditions having been agreed to by the railway company.

The committee recommends the making of two underpasses, one where Mc. Daniel street crosses the Southern railway, and another at Ponders avenue, under the Western and Atlantic and Southern railways. Both of these are matters that will be of great convenience to citizens and property owners.

During the year the salaries and wages paid by the department were the same as in the previous year, with the exception of wagon drivers, whose wages were increased twice, at one time from $1.20 to $1.33 1-3 per day, and at another time to $1.50 per day. It would have been the pleasure of the committee to make other increases, but the amount of appropriation would not permit.

Other matters mentioned in the report were the turning down of the movement to lay macadam and chert pavement under the assessment plan, and the original plan adhered to; also a change was made in the voucher system in the department of public works.

An acknowledgement was made of the faithful and efficient service to the city of R. N. Clayton, city engineer, and H. L. Collier, commissioner of public works, and all of the officers and employees in the departments of engineer and public work.

The report was signed by James L. Key, chairman; J. H. Harwell, E. W. Martin, W. A. Hancock, C. L. Chosewood, C. M. Roberts, S. C. Glass and E. E. Pomeroy.

WATERWORKS OF ATLANTA EARN $462,162 IN A YEAR

Magnificent Report Is Made by Frank P. Rice, the President of the City Water Board.

NEARLY half a million dollars represents the grand total earnings of the city waterworks department for the year 1906—to be exast, the figures are $462,162.14.

The expenses will not be over $225,000, this including taps and improvements, thus making the net profits for the year close to $250,000.

The annual report of Frank P. Rice, president of the water board, reevaled the figures, giving the cash receipts as $259,422-07, and the assets from new taps and replaced meters, $28,854.35; the material turned in through the city clerks office, $2,145.32, added, making a total of $290,421.74, in increase of $27,618.94 in water sales over the year 1905.

The department has furnished gratis for public buildings, hospitals, schools, jails, etc., $171,740.04 worth of water during the year there being no income, of course, from this.

Mr. Rice stated that should the city continue to lay mains the revenue derived from the department would rapidly increase and that he hoped and estimated that the increased receipts for 1907 would be not less than $35,000 over 1906.

GEORGIA TECH BUYS BIG LOT

Tract of Land Opposite Tech Shops Bought for $3,500.

Option on the Adjoining Lot Has Some Time Yet to Run, and Dr. Matheson Believes That Money Will Be Secured.

President K. G. Matheson, of the Georgia School of Technology, announced yesterday that the school had purchased the tract of land immediately opposite the Tech shops, fronting 180 feet on Cherry street, and 150 feet on Kimball street, for the sum of $3,500. Dr. Matheson also stated that the option upon the other adjoining lot, of about the same dimensions, had some time yet to run, before the expiration of which he felt assured that the $4,000 necessary for the purchase of it would be in hand, some money subscribed for campus extension remaining in hand after paying for the lot purchased yesterday.

Some months ago President Matheson, realizing that the day was fast approaching when the area of the campus would be entirely inadequate to the demands made upon it for space for the erection of needed buildings and enlargement, obtained options upon the ball park and two lots opposite the shops. Subscription lists were opened, and, $1,500 having been obtained from the state, individual subscriptions made up a fund sufficient to purchase the ball park and the lot purchased yesterday, leaving a balance on hand toward the purchase of the other lot upon which the school has an option. With the purchase made yesterday, the Tech now owns about 17 1-2 acres of land.

It is already contemplated that three new buildings will be erected, namely, a mining and engineering building, a dormitory, and a combined gymnasium and auditorium.

Inasmuch as the school will never again have the opportunity of obtaining an option or buying property at the price of the option held on the lot opposite the shops, it is highly desirable that sufficient funds be subscribed for the purchase of the lot before the option expires. To this end, the friends of this institution are requested to subscribe the additional amount needed.

TO PREVENT HIS LYNCHING

Fulford Was Removed From Dupont to Valdosta.

Valdosta, Ga., January 4.—(Special.)—J. E. Fulford, of Clinch county, has been arrested and put in jail here, charged with incentuous criminal assault, his alleged victim being his 16-year-old daughter. The charge was preferred against Fulford while living at Dupont last year, but he fled from the scene and went to Florida, where he is said to have married a young lady, and where he was arrested. He left his first wife and the daughter at Dupont. They appeared before the grand jury and gave full details of the crime.

Fulford denies that he assaulted his daughter, but admits sustaining improper relations with her. The feeling against him is very strong in Dupont, and in Clinch county, and the sheriff of that county thought it would be unsafe to let him remain inthe jail at Homerville.

IN THE COURTS

Will Johnson, the negro who was recently convicted in the superior court of criminal assault upon Mrs. Hembree and sentenced to be hanged yesterday, and who was subsequently granted a supersedeas in order that his motion for a new trial might be heard, will be heard through his attorneys, Walter N. McElreath, Mark L. Talbert and Alexander Stephens, before Judge Roan this morning. The new trial is asked on the ground of newly discovered evidence, the defense having secured affidavits from two white men, foremen for the Southern Ferro-Concrete Company, that on August 15, the day of the assault, ohnson was working under them at the Southern Express stables all that day.

It will be recalled that ohnson, although basing his motion for a new trial on this ground, stated in his own behalf during the trial that on the day of the assault he remained a this home all day, having sprained his back and being unable to work. A negro woman swore in his behalf and testified to the same effect, and his whole defense was based on the theory that he remained at his home the day of the assault.

Freight Cars Wrecked at Gadsden.

Gadsden, Ala., January 4.—A train in charge of Division Superintendent John Lane, of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis road, was wrecked at Albertville last night, and demolished two freight cars. The train become uncoupled on the grade near the Seventh District Agricultural school, and the front section stopped at the station, not knowing of the accident, when the rear section crashed into the front. Considerable delay as to the regular service was caused, but no one was hurt.

CAPTAIN JOINER IS SUSPENDED

Charges Have Been Made Against Him by Citizens.

It Is Stated That While on Duty September 22 He Used Language Unbecoming an Officer—Absolute Denial Made by Joiner.

On charges of conduct unbecoming an officer, Captain John C. Joiner, of the Atlanta police force, has been suspended, pending an investigation by the board of police commissioners.

A complaint has been filed with Chief Henry Jennings by several business men to the effect that on September 22, Saturday, Captain Joiner, while on duty, at the corner of Edgewood avenue, used language unbecoming an officer. It is further charged that he was under the influence of whisky.

Captain Joiner denies in full the charges against him, and states the following:

"We had strict orders not to allow the explosion of fireworks on the streets. While I was passing the corner of Peachtree St. and Edgewood avenue, I heard what appeared to be the report of a large firecracker. Turning I saw several boys running into a store. I told them if they shot any more fireworks I would lock them up.

"At this juncture Sergeant Foster came up. An evening paper stated that Patrolman Osborn was with me. He was more than a block away at the time. The manager of a nearby store came out and informed me that the report I heard was caused by the explosion of a torpedo stepped upon by some one passing. I deny being intoxicated, and did not use any improper language. No one ever heard of my using any profane language in my life."

Captain Joiner had been connected with the Atlanta police department for over twenty-eight years. He is 67 years of age, is a confederate soldier, and is one of the highest degree Masons in the city. He is past worshipful master of the Atlanta Lodge No. 56; past high master of Mount Zion chapter, R. A. M., No. 16; past eminent commander of Coeur de Leon commandery, Knights Templars, No. 4, and past grand high priest, R. A. M., for the state of Georgia.

After supper the cotillion was danced, the various pictures of the figures led by Mr. Carroll Latimer dancing with the guest of honor, Miss Wallace.

Mrs. J. K. Ottley and Mrs. Percival Sneed presided at the favor table, and the trio of young girls presiding at the punch bowl included Misses Marjorie Brown, Passie May Ottley and Irene Searle.

Mrs. Brown and Miss Wallace were assisted in receiving by Miss Eloise Brown, and assisting in the entertainment of the guests were Miss Mitchell and Mrs. E. G. McCabe.

The favors were dainty creations that added to the interest of the evening. There was the butterfly figure, when spangled wings were presented the ladies, and the driving figure, when reins and beribboned whips and caps were the favors.

The candle figure introduced waxen tapers in artificial roses as favors, and there were the usual foibles that are a part of the favor table.

Miss Wallace was lovely in a dancing frock of pale pink dotted net, trimmed in ruffles of the same and lace.

Mrs. Brown was beautifully gowned in white embroidered batiste and lace.

Miss Brown wore white silk and lace.

Mrs. Ottley wore rose colored panne velvet with trimmings of pointe d'Alencon lace.

Mrs. Sneed wore a pale gray panne crepe gown, showing a design of pink roses and trimmed in duchesse lace.

The toilets of the fair guests were unusually pretty. Miss Hemmingway was very much admired in white radium silk and valenciennes lace.

The party of eight was seated around a table picturesque in brilliant colors. The centerpiece was a basket of fruit and white myacinths tied with red tulle, the silver candlesticks had red shades, and the lace cloth was laid over red, while the table had harmonious setting in the red tones of the dining room furnishings and finish.

COLDER WEATHER PROMISED TODAY

Atlanta Has Enjoyed June Temperature for Some Time.

Yesterday was another ideal day so far as the Atlanta weather was concerned, although the temperatures suggested June as much as January. While it was very warm and there was plenty of Georgia sunshine, the mercury failed to climb as high as on Thursday by some 7 degrees. The highest point reached yesterday was 57 degrees, while the lowest temperature was 52 degrees, making the temperature some 15 degrees above the normal for the average temperature, which is 42 dgrees.

Continued fair weather is promised for today with falling temperatures and a minimum of 34 degrees. While this will be considerably colder weather than Atlanta has enjoyed for the past few days, it will have nothing sensational about it, but rather this pormised colder weather from the northwest will be but about normal weather for January. According to the recrods which have been kept in the Atlanta weather bureau for the past twenty-nine years, this month is one of the very coldest of the winter and according to rule it is time some freezing weather was making its way to the Gate City.

As a result of yesterday's summerish temperatures overcoats were quite the exception and there were a number of shirtwaist girls on the streets in the shopping distiets. But warm as it was, there were also many who wore furs, but these were all sufficiently new to warrant their being Christmas presents, and Christmas presents are always seasonable a long as they are new and there is the least possible excuse for wearing them.

CHARLES HOLT HEADS LEAGUE

Anti-Saloon League Discusses Prohibition Election at Meeting.

"No compromise" was the battle cry of the Anti-Saloon League of Atlanta at its meeting last night at Carnegie library.

The league went squarely on record as favoring a prohibition election at the earliest time practicable, and it was argued that it would be far better to go to the legislature with a defeat of large proportions than to go to Fulton county's representatives with a backdown.

A strong report setting forth the exact position of the league in regard to prohibition in Fulton county was adopted. The report says in substance that the effort by council to increase the liquor license to $2,000 is but a blind; that it is a compromise unworthy of prohibitionists of principle. This same sentiment was voiced by Rev. Sam W. Small, Will D. Upshaw and J. L. D. Hillyer.

A committee of five will be appointed to go before the Evangelical Ministers' Association Monday, January 7, to present the report and secure an indorsement of it.

The meeting, though the annual one, was not at all well attended. There were only about forty members present.

The following officers were elected: Charles Holt, president; Rev. Frank Eakes, first vice president; C. H. Byrd, second vice president; Rev. A. R. Holderby, third vice president; Robert Shropshire, secretary, and C. H. Byrd, treasurer.

The report goes on to say that the action of council is calculated to deflect attention from the real issue; that council's action will not be allowed to affect the league's action one way or another; that the petitions will be pressed until sufficient names are secured to go to the representatives of Fulton county with an assurance that they will pledge themselves to state prohibition.

The committee drafting the resolution was composed of W. D. Upshaw, J. H. Eakes, J. L. D. Hillyer, J. H. Lockhart and R. L. Motley.

A Bronze Medal Calendar.

The 1907 calendar of N. W. Ayer & Son, the Philadelphia advertising agents, is just out, and as usual it is one of the season's best office calendars.

They have followed the same design used in 1906, but their famous medal and motto "Keeping Everlastingly At It Brings Success" appear on a bronze background, which gives it an exceedingly rich appearance. While the calendar is arranged with a month on each flap the figures are clearly legible across a large room. The blank spaces on the flaps are filled with new and pointed epigrams on advertising and business-building in general.

The calendar is too expensive for general distribution, but while they last, Ayer & Son will mail a copy to any address upon receipt of twenty-five cents.

THEY STRUNG HIM UP TO TREE

Lynching of Negro for Entering a Young Lady's Bed Room.

Eufaula, Ala., January 4.—A negro, whose name cannot be learned here, was lynched at Midway, Ala., this morning. A posse of indignant citizens swung him up to a tree, and riddled his body with bullets.

The negro, who appears to have been a well known character in that community, had only recently returned from the penitentiary. Wednesday night he entered the room of Miss Morrel King, at Midway, by pushing open one of the shutters about midnight, and had grasped her hand before she awoke. Her screams attracted the other inmates of the house, and the negro escaped. A posse immediately set out after the negro, and captured him yesterday. When brought to Midway this morning he made a full confession, and the lynching followed.

It is learned that a similar attempt was made to enter the room of two other young ladies, at Midway, a short time ago, and the citizens were aroused. Miss King is a daughter of Lem King, a prominent banker of the place, and is a beautiful and cultured young woman. Her mother died a few months ago, and she was in charge of the household.

After the excitement had subsided it was beyond doubt established that the negro lynched was Will Scott, a notorious character.

A TEA GOWN OF QUIET ELEGANCE.

There is perhaps no nation on the globe which appreciates the value of the luxuries of life as do the American people. Paris may set the pace in fashions, but the American woman wears them with greater grace and enjoyment. The gown portrayed is one of unusual gracefulness, every line of which bespeaks quality and elegance. Made of the simplest materials and with unpretentious trimmings, it is still a garment to be admired. The box pleats of front and back give long and flowing lines, while the broad collars add a dainty touch of becomingness. The sleeves may be finished in any desired manner, the angel ruffles to match the collar being suggested. A soft silk, challie or albatross might have collars and ruffles of lace or embroidered batiste. The gown may serve for tea, rest or morning occasions. In the medium size the pattern calls for 7 1-4 yards of 36-inch material.

At the Grand.

The dear old "Prince of Pilsen" came back to Atlanta last night, and many there were at the Grand who were more than glad to do him honor, and bid him welcome. Deep down in the hearts of most, always to be denied, of course, because of the democracy of a free republic, there lies an admiration for princes, and those of the blood royal. Most of all is this true when the prince comes trooping into the Gate City to the really pretty music that follows in the wake of this scion of the House Pilsen.

But best of all in this present visit is the half dozen wee little, dear little, queer little bits of femininity that grace the front of the chorus. Whether as French maids, miminutive jockeys or—when one sees still more of them—as bathing girls, this tiny half dozen is quite the daintiest and cutest coterie of singing and dancing followers of terpsichore that have strolled this way since the metaphorical cows turned homeward. Perhaps they were most fascinating when they appeared as the French maids at 9:20 o'clock last night. This every appearance was the occasion of as much applause as all the men present could put forward, as many as did not have the tempering and restraining influence of accompanying wives.

Honestly, these little chorus girls were enough to make any man forget his family. But though ever and ever so tiny, this diminutive half dozen wore figures that were fully and perfectly developed, and then reduced to lowest terms. They were not a bit bigger than left-over Christmas bonbons, and it really seemed as though the ushers ought to have handed them around as souvenirs. But there were only six. And Frenchy Jeanette Bageard and Elinor Delmore harmonized with the other six perfectly. In fact, the entire eight seemed so many grace notes in a most pleasing performance.

As to the rest of the production, it was one of Henry W. Savage's presentations, and there were quite enough present to fill the big Grand stage, from big Jess Dandy, the bogus prince from "Synsynnatty," to the tiniest one of the diminutive six, the wee little girl on the end, the people kept time to the libretto and the score. Which is saying much.

Jess Dandy was still Jess, and he had every one with him, from the top gallery to his own wet self in the fountain. George Lydecker, as the real prince, was quite as handsome as the part called for, and his singing pleased quite enough for many encores. The Heidleberg chorus was exceptionall well rendered, and so deserved the many repetitions that one could fairly hear the echoes toasting "Hoch der Kaiser." Miss Ida Stanhope's charming personality, as the widow, won a warm welcome, as did many others, and most of all Miss Rita Abbott, as the Atlanta girl, with the Brookwood dreamy eyes, and the Peachtree manner of parading. The costumes and scenery were what they should be, and fortunately a matinee and night performance still offer opportunities. And most of all, opportunities to see and hear those six little feminine fractions of humanity, which are always proper fractions, and not the vulgar kind that used to give so much trouble in the old arithmetics.

ALAN ROGERS.

Charles B. Hanford.

A little more than a decade ago the advent of Charles B. Hanford as a star in the legitimate drama was hailed by the press of the entire country as an event of great artistic consequence.

Mr. Hanford had purchased from the estate of the late Lawrence Barrett the scenery, costumes and parts which had been used in the celebrated production of "Julius Caesar" by the Booth-Barrett combination. Of this organization Mr. Hanford had become a conspicuous member owing to his delineation of the role of "Marc Antony." It was his great success in this part which decided him in his ambition to be a star and since that time each season has witnessed a steady and substantial increase in his popularity, until at present he ranks with the most prosperous players of the day.

Each year Mr. Hanford has offered a special production and in selecting "Julius Caesar" for that purpose now he intentionally presents a play which will command his utmost resources both as to its mounting and as to selection of the cast of its interpretation. Miss Marie Drofnah, who has so brilliantly identified herself with Hanford performances heretofore, will be seen in the role of Portia.

Mr. Hanford has brought together a company of players who may be depended on to give adequate pictures not only of the noble Brutus and the crafty Cassius, but of the minor characters as well. The American mind is intensely interested in politics and "Julius Caesar," the greatest of all political dramas, has been meeting with a degree of recognition that is not only a compliment to the star and his company, but a credit to the artistic tastes of the various cities in which he has appeared.

"Julius Caesar" will be seen at the Grand on Monday night, January 7, and the Tuesday matinee. On Tuesday night "Cymbeline" will be the play.

Jefferson as "Rip Van Winkle."

"Rip Van Winkle" is a play that always delights the young folks, and the old, too, for that matter. It has made half the English-speaking world laugh and cry, alternating smiles and tears, and, as depicted by Thomas Jefferson, the role of the vagabond Rip is said to receive a remarkable portrayal. "Rip Van Winkle," with Thomas Jefferson in the title role, will be the offering at the Grand on Wednesday and Thursday nights and Thursday matinee.

Robert Edeson as "Strongheart."

It takes Robert Edeson one hour and a quarter to "make up" for the part of Strongheart in the play of that name, which comes to the Grand on Friday and Saturday of next week.

Mr. Edeson plays the part of a full-blooded educated Indian and is said to have added to the stage one of the finest characterizations seen in recent years. "Strongheart" is a big success beyond a doubt, and that it will play to capacity here there is every reason to believe, as its star, Robert Edeson, is one of the most popular actors visiting this city.

"My Partner."

"My Partner," at the Eldorado, is continuing to draw large crowds at every performance. The matinee yesterday and the performance last night both were given before fine houses. "My Partner" will be given again this afternoon and tonight.

At the Bijou.

Fiske O'Hara, the new Irish singing star, to be introduced to the patrons of the Bijou next week by Mr. Charles E. Blaney, the well-known playwright and manager of many stars and plays, is a distinct novelty, inasmuch as he sings songs that no other actor or star can sing, for he writes them all himself, and they are introduced for the first time in his novel Irish drama, "Mr. Blarney from Ireland," written for him by Mr. Blaney.

The play, which is a novelty, introducing as it does a singing Irish star in a four-act comedy drama, all the scenes of which are laid in and around New York, permitted Mr. O'Hara, in composing his songs, to get in those of love, of the memories of mother, songs for little ones and comedy songs also.

A love song that will be popular for years to come is sung by him to the heroine and is entitled, "Sunbeam of My Heart." It will do much to help the work of that little god that appears to most people who enjoy plays.

DOUBLE FORCE, SAYS RECORDER

Judge Broyles Tries Over 19-000 Cases During Year.

In His Annual Report He States the Atlanta Force Is Entirely Too Small, and That It Should Be Doubled to Protect the City.

Judge Nash R. Broyles, the recorder of the police court of the city of Atlanta, makes in his annual report a very interesting recommendation. After fully considering the riot of September 22, he recommends that the Atlanta police force be doubled, thus making the peace and order of the city guaranteed as it were. He gives praise to Chief Henry Jennings, and his work during during the disturbance, and since that time. He praises Probation Officer Gloer for his work, and Clerk W. H. Preston for his efficient services.

Judge Broyles tried over 19,000 cases in the police court last year. While trying to take care of the wrongdoers of this city, during last year, he was confronted with a very trying situation. When the arrests were made in the recent riot, every one was watching the police court judge to see what he was going to do. Instead of backing down, he gave, as he says in his own words: "The limit of the law to those found guilty of being participants in that outrageous and inexcusable outbreak."

The recorder expresses his heartfelt thanks to the mayor and general council, and to those citizens of Atlanta who gave him their unstinted moral support during the disturbance.

Below is the report in full:

"To the Honorable Mayor and General Council of the City of Atlanta, Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: I have the honor to herewith submit by annual report for the year 1907:

Number of cases docketed in 1906	19,603
Number of cases docketed in 1905	15,439
Showing an increase of	4,164
Total fines imposed in 1906	$141,809.84
Total fines imposed in 1905	99,971.25
Showing an increase of	$41,838.59
Cash fines in 1906	$86,294.20
Cash fines in 1905	55.149.60
Showing an increase of	$31,144.60
Fines worked out on streets in 1906	$53,048.39
Fines worked out on streets in 1905	42,461.90
Showing an increase of	$10,586.49

"Included in the above were 1,131 cases against the juveniles. Mr. Gloer, the probation officer of the juvenile court, has done admirable work during the past year, and has submitted a most interesting report of his duties for that period. Said report will be given to the press, and kept on file in the probation officer's office, where any citizen interested in the juvenile court can examine it.

"As will be seen from the above figures, the cases brought before the court during the past year were over 4,000 more than made in the preceding year, and all records of the police court have been broken.

"Probably the most important cases of the entire year were those growing out of the unfortunate and deplorable 'riot,' which occurred last September. I thought it my imperative duty to apply the extreme limit of the law to those found guilty of being participants in that outrageous and inexcusable outbreak, and I desire here to record my grateful thanks to the mayor and members of the council and the good citizens generally of Atlanta, who gave my action their unstinted moral support. I am satisfied that the criminal element of our citizenship has been taught a lesson they will long remember, and that such a murderous outbreak will never again stain the fair reputation of our beloved city.

"Before concluding, I wish to bear testimony to the able and faithful services which Captain Jennings is giving the city as her chief of police. He is doing the best he can with the small force under him—but the plain fact is that Atlanta has outgrown her police department. She has with great rapidity grown from a small town into a great city, and the police department has not kept pace with her. An adequate force could have nipped the riot of September in the bud, and so have prevented the murderous assaults that occurred. I earnestly recommend to the general council that they double the number of our policemen, and so make certain the future peace and order of our city.

"Mr. W. H. Preston, the clerk of the recorder's court, has most efficiently performed his duties during the past year, and I am greatly indebted to him for his valuable services.

"Respectfully submitted,
"NASH R. BROYLES,
"Recorder."

At the banquet tonight President C. H. Porter made an address. In part he said:

"It is not necessary that I point out to this intelligent audience the necessity for industrial independence in the south. It is a matter of common knowledge that the Carolinas and Georgia became prosperous when the cotton industry was transferred from New England to the south. It is a matter of common knowledge that the state of Alabama became prosperous when the iron industries of Pittsburg found their counterpart at Birmingham. It is evident that as a general principle of business economics, it is advisable that southern people have their insurance with home industries just as their savings are protected in southern banks and trust companies.

"But the business of life insurance is different from all other forms of business activity. More parties are at interest and more directly at interest than in any other form of business. When the south transfers to the banks of the north $60,000,000 a year in order to distribute the death loss among its citizens, so that this loss shall not fall too heavily upon the individual, the individual is not directly the loser by the transaction, since his insurance is safe and his beneficiary will be paid the sum insured at his death. But the individual is the loser since the community has lost sixty million dollars of its life blood, and is to that extent weaker. If these life insurance premiums were paid each year to southern institutions the individual would be protected in equal degree and the south would be $60,000,000 stronger each year. This increase in its resources would reflect itself in prosperity in every business center, and with each individual unit connected with each business center."

He was removed to his home suffering with cerebral congestion.

RALLY FOLLOWS EARLY DECLINE

Due to Better Demand for Spots in Interior.

Higher Grades Harder to Buy, and This Phase of the Situation Offsets Heavy Receipts for the Time Being—The Closing Tone Was Steady.

New York, January 4.—The cotton market was very quiet during today's session, but rallied after an early decline and closed steady at a net loss of 1 point on January, but 2@7 points higher on the later positions. Sales for the day were estimated at 100,000 bales.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 2@4 points owing to rather disappointing English cables. The loss was increased after the call under scattered liquidation and a little selling by room bears, who were evidently encouraged by the bid estimate for tomorrow's receipts at Houston. At the decline of 7@11 points, January being relatively weak as a result of a few points, offerings diminished and the market was steadied in the late trading by covering and support from some of the local bulls. The close was at probably the best prices of the session. Southern spot markets were reported unchanged to ⅛c higher and private advices from the interior claimed that the higher grades were becoming harder to buy. This phase of the situation appears to be offsetting the heavy receipts for the time being, as a market influence in connection with the reports of a continued good trade demand. The weather map showed further rain in the belt, but the precipitation was generally light and hardly figured as a market factor.

Receipts at the ports today 55,568 bales, against 67,570 last week and 35,843 last year. For the week 318,000 bales, against 311,764 last week and 154,945 last year. Today's receipts at New Orleans 14,754 bales, against 7,026 last year and at Houston 17,629 bales, against 4,509 bales last year.

New Orleans Cotton Market.

New Orleans, January 4.—Spot cotton closed steady; quotations revised; middling unchanged at 10 5-16c. Sales on the spot were 5,550 bales and 1,2000 to arrive.

Futures steady, 3 to 6 points lower on unsatisfactory reports from the English and New York markets. The active demand for spot cotton sustained prices, and the close was steady, 2 to 3 points under yesterday.

The Dry Goods Market.

New York, January 4.—The dry goods market showed more signs of coming activity during the day. The cotton yarn market was firm and yarns were scarce for quick delivery. Some staple print goods were advanced half a cent a yard. The raw wool market is firm, with buyers awaiting the results of London sales scheduled for next week. Woolen goods for men's wear are moving well.

Liverpool Cotton Market.

Liverpool, January 4, 12:30 p. m.—Cotton, spots good business done; prices steady 1 point lower; middling uplands 5.87d; sales 10,000 bales; speculation and export 1,000; receipts 37,200, all American.

Futures opened steady.

Southern Exchange.

Washington, D. C., January 4.—COTTON—The strength of the market today wa snot as good as expected, partly as a result of heavy cables and some suggestions that the late activity in Liverpool spots was attributed to speculative trading and not real demand, but contrary to this, foreign information says that things are satisfactory and little or no pressure developed during the latter part of the session.

The next ginners' report, to be issued on Tuesday, the 8th inst., will be looked forward to with some interest, and may result in more activity. However, the situation is free of special interest or incentive to trade. While the foreign demand has shown some falling off as compared with last year, it is quite certain that foreigners will have to take about two-thirds of our crop and this, together with our own great needs, the crop should be all taken and with some shortage.

STOCKS—With a few exceptions, the market has acted almost directly opposite ot that of yesterday. The market started out this morning as if it intended to do something, and it did, for from the very begining stocks were strong and aggressive and have continued so until this writing, and while there has been some backing and filling, but mostly the latter, the market has held its own and more. By far the most conspicuous in the railroads are Atchison, Reading, Union Pacific, St. Paul and Canadian Pacific, all of which have made notable gains and held them. The proposed Union Pacific investigation seems to have little or no effect on this stock, which advanced from 178, the low price, to 180 3-4, where it is now selling. Reading, too, has made 2 points and looks well around these figures. In the industrial list Copper is the most promising, while it has made material advance it has held strong in the face of large offerings and advanced 5-8 per cent. United States Steel common has had a little more than its share of activity, compared at least with purchase and especially those we have mentioned.

Increased Shipments From Argentina Chief Influence.

Heavier Receipts in Northwest and a Sharp Break in Corn Added to the Bearish Sentiment. Market Closed Weak in Tone.

Chicago, January 4.—Increased shipments of wheat from Argentina had a weakening influence today in the local wheat market, the May option closing at a net decline of ¼c. Corn was down ⅜@½c. Oats were ⅛@¼c lower. Provisions were down 2½@5c to 7½c.

When it was announced on the local board that shipments of wheat from Argentina during the last week aggregated 880,000 bushels, against 288,000 bushels for the previous week, there was a rush to sell wheat, which carried the price of the May delivery down to 75½c, the lowest point of the present crop. The fact that receipts in the northwest today exceeded those of a year ago had also a depressing effect on values. Toward the end of the first hour selling became less urgent and prices advanced moderately. The upturn was aided by the report of Bradstreet's which showed total exports during the week of 4,250,000 bushels. During the last hour, however, the market again became weak, a sharp break in the price of corn creating bearish sentiment in the wheat plt. The greater part of the demand throughout the day came from shorts. The market closed weak. May opened ⅛ to ¼c lower at 75½c to 75⅝c, advanced to 76c and closed at 75½c. Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 266,500 bushels. Primary receipts were 759,000 bushels, against 511,000 for the corresponding day last year. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 484 cars, against 556 last week and 338 a year ago.

After holding steady for the greater part of the day the corn market became weak in the last half hour and prices declined more than half a cent on selling upon a liberal increase in primary receipts was chiefly responsible for the break. The total primary receipts today were 940,000 bushels, against 554,000 for the same day last year. The market closed weak with prices at the lowest point of the day. May opened unchanged to a shade lower at 43⅜ to 43⅜@43¼c, advanced to 43⅝c and declined to 43c, where it closed. Local receipts 288 cars, none contract grade.

Trading in the oats pit was quiet and prices were easer in sympathy with wheat. Commission houses and cash interests were the principal sellers, while the demand came chiefly from local bulls. May opened a shade lower at 36¼c, sold between 36@36⅜c and closed at 36c. Local receipts 182 cars.

Provisions were firm early in the day because of a 5c advance in the live hogs. On the break in corn, however, there were moderate declines throughout the market. At the close May pork was off 7½c at $16.60. Lard was down 2½@5c at $9.47½@9.50. Ribs were 2½@5c lower at $9@9.02½.

Estimated receipts for tomorrow: Wheat 78 cars; corn 478 cars; oats 238 cars; hogs 16,000 head.

EASIER MONEY BUOYS STOCKS

Resulted in Substantial Advances Throughout List.

A Hesitating Short Interest Was Important Element in the Day's Buying—Profit-Taking Had No Effect on the Prices. Closed Very Active.

New York, January 4.—Speculative sentiment which has seemed to be in a state of solution during the present week was precipitated into tangible form on the side of higher values today. Substantial advances resulted from the general disposition to buy stocks. The demand was quite varied and affected the list throughout, although there was a marked favor still shown for stocks which long have held the foremost place in movements. A hesitating short interest which has been added to during the week, encouraged by the lack of response in the market to favorable developments, was an important element in the day's buying. The pronounced relaxation in the money market was the underlying ground for the advance. Funds on call were in apparent abundance, and the rate did not get over 6 per cent, with the ruling rate for the day below that. The forces which have brought about this condition promise to continue active for some time to come. The estimates of the week's currency movement make it evident that a substantial inflow from the interior to New York has set in and is likely to be extended in view of the reasonable subsidence of requirements for movement of the crops. New York appears to have received in the neighborhood of $3,000,000 in cash during the week.

Union Pacific was one of the strongest and most active stocks on the list, in spite of the beginning of the inquiry by the interstate commerce commission into the relations of the Harriman properties with a view to discover conflict with the law. There was an aggressive recovery in the Hill stocks, although the postponement of the closing of the books for subscriptions to the new stock issue was witness of the reality of the obstacle to the new issue by the state of Minnesota's legal process.

No difficulty was found in absorbing the sales to take profits on the day, and the closing tone was buoyant and very active.

Bonds were firm; total sales par value $2,550,000.

U. S. bonds were unchanged on call.

Money on call steady, 5@6 per cent; ruling rate 5 1-2 per cent; closing bid 5 1-2 per cent, offered at 6 per cent.

Time loans easier; sixty days 6 1-2 per cent, ninety days 6@6 1-2, six months 6 per cent.

Prime mercantile paper 6@6 1-2 per cent.

Sterling exchange strong, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.8495@4.85 for demand and at $4.8050@4.8060 for sixty-day bills. Posted rates $4.81@4.81 1-2 and $4.85 1-2@4.86. Commercial bills $4.80 1-4.

Barley silver 70c.

Mexican dollars 54c.

Government bonds steady; railroad bonds firm.

Bradstreet's Review.

New York, January 4.—Bradstreets tomorrow will say:

"Quiet prevails in distributive trade, but industrial lines were never so active at this season. Post-holiday and weather conditions affect both wholesale and retail trade, the latter line noting slackness in demand for heavy wearing apparel.

"Prices of staples show remarkable strength, and iron and steel, leather, raw wool, cotton and cotton goods display notable firmness. While the car shortage is throughout trouble is still very acute the country over. There are reports from a few sections, especially the northwest; and parts of the Pacific coast, that grain and lumber are moving more freely.

"Collections are classed as good at the west; slow, with extensions asked for in the South Atlantic states, and only fair in the northwest.

"Notwithstanding the holiday week, demand for pig iron for future delivery was active, the eastern and Chicago districts being the chief factors. In the east the sales have been made up of basic foundry and forge irons, while in the west heavy orders for malleable Bessemer have been placed, deliveries to be made in the last half of the year. Sales of iron are unimportant simply because none is available. A significant feature is the fact that foreign iron has appeared in the Cleveland district after a lapse of five years. New orders for steel rail are of goodly proportions. Two independent Pennsylvania rail producers announce they will not book orders calling for delivery after August for less than $30 a ton, an increase of $2, and the highest price quoted for standard rails since 1900, but the leading producer shows no disposition to advance its prices.

"Building operations have fallen off, but the railroads continue to place goodly contracts for structural shapes. Merchant bars are active and wire products are in good demand. Coke is strong. Coal is firm and in good demand.

"Lead and spelter are not so firm.

"Tin declined sharply in the latter part of the week on pressure to sell and a more favorable statistical situation.

"Domestic coper is firm and considerable premium prevails for spot supplies. But late advices indicate weakness for warrants and refined copper in the overseas markets.

"Strong demand for spot cotton and the prompt stoppage of January notices have made for strength in the raw cotton, despit the heavy current movement.

"Grain prices have shown little movement.

"The aggressive strength of all kinds of leather and of hides is in sharp contrast with the reports of conservative buying of shoes of manufacturers.

"The situation in textile markets is apparently a very strong one. Clearing sales by jobbers have been complete and cotton goods are heavily sold ahead. Most manufacturers are booked for six months and prices are very firm. Mild weather is a drawback to trade in heavy winter goods and clearance sales by retailers are reported begun in the west.

"Raw wool is strong and active here and abroad, and no sign of easing prices is noted.

"Business failures in the United States for the week ending January 3 number 185 against 161 last week and 220 in the like week of 1906.

"Canadian failures for the week number 16, as against 18 last week and 32 in 1906.

"Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada, for the week ending Jannary 3, aggregated 4,255,270 bushels, against 2,494,002 last week and 3,839,941 this week last year. For the past twenty-seven weeks of the fiscal year the exports were 97,923,504, against 69,020,020 a year ago.

"Corn exports for the week are 1,974,599 bushels, against 1,660,008 last week and 6,265,333 a year ago. For the fiscal year to date exports are 25,804,088, against 43,218,281 a year ago."

Dun's Review.

New York, January 4.—Dispatches to Dun's Review indicate that the new year has opened under conditions fully up to sanguine expectations.

Boston reports brisk retail trade and the usual bargain sales at department stores, while manufacturing plants are well occupied. Wholesale dry goods trade at Philadelphia has been quiet, but textile manufacturers work at full capacities. Window glasses production is heavy at Pittsburg and steel mills well employed.

Manufacturing activity continues at Baltimore. Jobbing trade is up to the standard.

Unreasonable weather and the holidays combined to make trade quiet at Louisville and there is some complaint regarding collections.

Although current business is quiet at New Orleans, results in December were very satisfactory and collections are prompt.

Wholesale and other lines are quiet at St. Louis and the trade in grain is only moderate.

Retail trade at Kansas City exceeds last year. Wholesale lines are now taking stock.

Business at Chicago opened the new year and four days two years ago. Yearly nual salaries progressing favorably and little time is lost in repairing machinery. All the available steel producing capacity is at work and there is no prospect of an immediate increase.

Retail trade at Cincinnati is quiet and wholesale dry goods sales are only moderate.

Bank clearings for the week show much irregularity, but a difference in dates this year and last will account for part of this, the week this year including only two business days in January, whereas there were three days last year and four days two ears ago. Yearly settlements always swell bank clearings during the first four or five days of January, and the volume of clearings this week is large in aggregate, for the leading cities in the United States $2,928,227,386, a decrease of 10.7 per cent compared with a year ago, an increase of 13.3 per cent over the corresponding week of 1904.

There are losses at New York, Boston and some other cities in the south and southwest, but these are in part due in difference in dates covered by the week.

Edmund & Charles Randolph.

Opelika, Ala., January 4.—COTTON—Market closed about the high point of the day, making Liverpool due to come 3 to 3 1-2 points up tomorrow. No special feature developed in the early trading; prices gradually declined on this side as well as abroad, which looked like realizing sales. The maximum recession amounted to 17 points for the January option, and 15 to 16 points for the other positions, from the top prices reached yesterday, which was about the natural decline after the recent advance of over 50 points. In the afternoon session Parrott, Wilson & Fay were responsible for the advance which carried prices very near the high point of yesterday. The fact that present quotations are away under a parity with spot values, that, while cotton purchased previously is coming out freely, first purchases are difficult and sooner or later contracts must advance on spot holders' break, is apparently overlooked for the time being. Our telegraphic advices from Waco, Tex., indicate a good spot business doing with a growing demand for lower grades as well. Railroad congestion is being relieved, and from the amount of cotton behind presses the movement is expected to continue free for some time to come. Premiums are being paid on desired grades in order to fill the necessary requirements.

Spots at New York and New Orleans unchanged, with sales in the latter market of 5,550 bales on the spot and 4,200 to arrive.

Manager.

The Oglethorpe Echo Changes Hands

Lexington, Ga., January 4.—(Special.)—Boon & Bizgers, printers and editors by profession, have leased The Oglethorpe Echo, our superb weekly, that is owned and been edited and published by W. A. Shackelford for the last twenty-five years. These talented gentlemen assume control this week, and with their skill and practical experience, coupled with their high order of mental endowments, they will ably sustain the high order of the publication, as in the past.

Mr. Shackelford will take a rest for a year, as he well deserves, but his facile pen will doubtless do light literary work at times.

Capture of a White Partridge.

Lexington, Ga., January 4.—(Special.)—R. Lee Callaway discovered the famous "white" partridge in a covey near his home this week, and as it had been long sought for by our sportsmen, he offered a prize to the captor. With a net, a negro on his place, captured the bird, and delivered it to Mr. Callaway, unhurt. He now has it at his home, to the admiration of every one.

Many banks, manufacturers, and big corporations all over the country have adopted it. There are reasons for this. The expert accountant in charge of our Loose-Leaf business will be glad to have an opportunity to explain them for you any time.
